

MAY ASK KAISER TO STOP MASSACRES

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 24.—A personal appeal may be made to Emperor William to have Germany influence the Turkish government to end the Armenian massacres. Charles R. Crane, who is the head of the movement in this country to aid the Armenians, expects to go to New York today to call a meeting of all interested. He has made it very plain in all of his conferences here that the need is urgent if hundreds of thousands of lives are to be saved. Mr. Crane and the president have discussed the case and he has been told that the United States government, because of the claims of neutrality, cannot appear officially in the case.

It is understood, however, that both at the White House and at the state department it was pointed out to Crane and his associates that a word from Emperor William would stop the massacres instantly. In this connection it is expected that Crane and his commission may decide to circulate petitions throughout this country addressed to the German government, urging that it act to save Armenia. This easily can be done unofficially, but the state department cannot take any cognizance of it.

There is much bitter feeling in official circles over the Armenian situation. The government has received information that any interference with Turkey's internal affairs will be resented. The Turkish foreign office has very frankly told Ambassador Morgenthau that her treatment of Armenians has been and is "entirely a domestic matter," and under international law this is entirely true. Hundreds of American missionaries and teachers scattered throughout Asiatic Turkey, are hostages for our non-interference.

However, in his conference here it has been explained to Mr. Crane that Turkey is entirely under the domination of Germany. Her defenses would crumble almost overnight if the Germans withdrew. If Germany demands that the massacres be ended it is believed here they will immediately comply.

The state department again today refused to make public details of the massacres that have been sent through by the American consular agents in Turkey.

"Ten per cent of Armenians, some 125,000 persons, have thus far been exempted from the deportation order," explained an official today. "These are the Catholics and Protestants converts of the missions. The Gregorian, or Armenian church contains ninety per cent of the Armenians and it is these that have been the subjects of persecutions. But the Catholics and Protestants will be in grave danger if the intolerable attacks are not ended by outside pressure."

Crane and his associates in the general commission will get everything in readiness as soon as possible to perfect their organization and raise badly needed funds. The needs are enormous and the amount that charitable Americans will be called upon for must run into millions.

PROPOSED LOAN CUT IN HALF

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 24.—Behind the Chinese wall of secrecy which guards the Anglo-French credit commissions and the American financiers with whom they are dealing for a war loan, negotiations are proceeding with the foreign representatives yielding to the bankers on important points.

The influence of the western bankers is being felt more and more.

That $500,000,000 has been named as the outside figure unless the terms of the loan were changed, was learned in financial circles today.

It is has been practically settled that Russia shall not participate. Opposition from financial groups in the west and middle west to the so-called arbitrary method of the Morgan group, through which the commissions are dealing with less important interests, is being smoothed over, as was indicated by the formal statement saying:

"The commission wishes to deny emphatically that there has been friction. The report that there has been is not true."

The commissioners had hoped to be able to make announcement of the terms of the deal within the next forty-eight hours, but meanwhile hesitancy on the part of a big bulk of American capital over the financial condition of the British government and the seizure of millions of dollars' worth of American goods by England has not been overcome.

Open hostility to the loan is developing in outside quarters. Following the first of a series of anti-loan mass meetings held by the American Truth Society last night, letters protesting against the loan have been sent to President Wilson, State Treasurer Wells, Mayor John P. Mitchell of this city and many other public officials. These were signed by G. W. Mead of the American Truth Society. Another mass meeting will be held by the society in this city tonight.

If the loan is floated a guarantor's committee of bankers will be appointed to assure its integrity to investors. Among those on this committee will probably be J. P. Morgan, H. P. Davidson, Frank A. Vanderlip, A. Barton Hepburn, Charles H. Sablin, Albert H. Wiggin, Francis L. Mine, George F. Baker and James S. Alexander. So far as known now there will be no out of town bankers on the committee.

There is now a movement under way to make the offering price to the public 99, bringing the profit of the bankers' syndicate down to 1 1/2 per cent. It was said by one banker that this margin of profit would cover the cost of marketing the notes with a slender profit for the syndicate.

Charles P. Hall, vice president of the American Hide and Leather Company, with a score of plants in New England, came out today in an interview in favor of the proposed loan, saying that New England interests are for it because it would help New England industries.

SCENES OF NEW YORK'S SUBWAY CAVE-IN.

Here are shown two scenes of the great subway cave-in on Wednesday morning, when a blast of dynamite loosened the roadway above the excavation in the new Seventh avenue subway and precipitated a trolley car, a brewery truck, several automobiles and more than a hundred persons into the thirty foot pit. Several were killed and more than a score injured. One picture shows the firemen and ambulance men at work dragging out the injured, while the other shows a general view of the disaster extending for two blocks.

DANIELS REFUTES DUMBA'S CHARGES

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 24.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels today took issue with Dr. Constantin Dumba, the Austrian ambassador. He emphatically declared that the ambassador was entirely in error in his claim that the wireless station now under control of navy department censors refused to send to Vienna the message by which Dumba made his explanation regarding the letter upon which President Wilson acted in demanding his recall.

"At no time have the naval censors held up any messages that either the Austrian or German ambassador desired to send to their home governments," said Daniels. "I know that every message tendered by Ambassador Dumba was sent forward."

This latest issue between the ambassador and the United States was added to the feeling of irritation against Dr. Dumba in official circles. While officials refuse to discuss the status of the ambassador they point out that his action in requesting the state department to arrange for a safe-conduct for himself through the war zone on the ground that he had received a personal message to report in Vienna, while this government still was without an answer to its demand for his recall was at least irregular. It would have justified the immediate sending to Ambassador Dumba of his passports, officials say. But there is a growing belief that Dr. Dumba has over-reached himself in his efforts to create a situation that would seem to give him the advantage in the diplomatic interchange and it will depend entirely on the tone of the Austrian officials' reply to President Wilson's recall demand whether the administration will consent to the Austrian representative going home on leave to report.

Acting Secretary of State Polk positively refused today to comment on the Dumba situation. He was told that Dr. Dumba has sent a message to Vienna complaining that he could not communicate freely and urging that quick action be taken on his request for recall. The acting secretary said that he knew nothing about the matter but that any action which Dumba might take would have no bearing on this government's plan. It will make no more what-ever to secure safe-conduct for Dumba until an official reply is made to the communication handed to the foreign office by Ambassador Penfield, which set forth why Dumba's usefulness in this country was at an end. The American minister at Bern is trying to get word through from Penfield showing the reason for the delay, but so far the department is in the dark.

If any effort is made in Vienna to haggle over the matter officials close to the administration say that it will be resisted in every way. The president, it is understood, still hopes that the Austrian foreign office will settle the matter by recalling the ambassador, and will take no steps to formulate a new plan of action until an official report is received from Penfield.

Fire at Highland.
The Highland fire department was called out Wednesday morning by a blaze in a pile of shavings in the crate factory of H. J. Pratt. The loss is covered by insurance. About three years ago a fire in the same place resulted in a more serious damage.

Entertained by Mr. Bogart.
Elva H. Bogart of this city entertained a dozen of his friends at his country home near Ashokan on Thursday evening. The menu consisted of roast pig, flanked with other products of the farm and the dinner proved a most delightful affair.

POLICEMEN SHOT AT NEW YORK DANCE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 24.—A fusillade of shots while several hundred persons were dancing at the McManus Casino early today fatally wounded two policemen and injured another man. Scores were trampled in the panic as the police pursued the gunmen among the crowd of dancers. The wounded officers were in plain clothes and off duty. The injured are James Bishop, 28, policeman, shot in right arm and lung, George Dapping, 26, policeman, shot under right eye; Daniel Tynan, 25, clerk, shot in left knee and groin.

Thomas O'Neill, 28, was arrested in the cellar of the Casino after a struggle. The police assert that several persons saw O'Neill fire some shots and that a revolver and two empty shells were found in his pocket.

The shooting occurred in the bar-room off the dance hall. On report said it was due to an effort by another is that it was a gangster's feud; a third is that policemen in plain clothes tried to stop a fight between two gunmen who did not know they were officers.

FLAGMAN STRUCK BY AN AUTOMOBILE

Madison Brink of 621 Broadway, employed as flagman at the Foxhall avenue crossing of the West Shore railroad, was struck by an automobile on Broadway on Thursday evening about 6 o'clock and painfully injured. It is feared that his skull is fractured. Mr. Brink was returning to his home after completing his day's work and was crossing Broadway near Henry street. In stepping from behind an automobile he was hit by the car of Dr. Frederick L. Barnum and hurled to the pavement. The physician and bystanders carried him to his home across the street. Dr. Frank Keator was also summoned. It was found that Brink had received several gashes on the face and head and he bled profusely. Bystanders said that Dr. Barnum was running slowly at the time of the accident and did everything in his power to avert the accident. Mr. Brink being shielded by the other automobile until almost on him. The windshield on Dr. Barnum's car was broken by the impact. After being taken to his home Mr. Brink remained unconscious for some time and was finally removed to the Kingston City Hospital. It was impossible to exactly determine Thursday night the extent of Mr. Brink's injuries but he was resting quietly as possible during the night. He was bleeding from a deep gash on the face and three scalp wounds. Mr. Brink is 65 years old but has a rugged constitution and the chances are favorable for his recovery. Hundreds of people witnessed the accident and expected that the injured man would be dead by the time he was picked up.

KILLED IN WRECK ON MISSOURI PACIFIC

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Omaha, Neb., Sept. 24.—Three persons were killed and a score or more injured, some dangerously, when Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 704, bound for Kansas City, collided head-on with a freight train near Plattsmouth, Neb., today. Both engineers and the brakeman of the freight train were killed. A number of passengers, two baggage men, a brakeman and a porter on the passenger train were injured, some of them seriously.

The wreck occurred on a curve where a patch of trees hid the approaching trains. The trains were running at about 25 miles an hour. None of the coaches left the tracks. The locomotives were demolished.

Vacation Well Spent.
Fire Commissioner Charles Lahl, Jr., is spending the week at Holyoke, Mass., to which city he accompanied his niece, Miss Helen Elmendorf, who is a student at Holyoke College. Miss Elmendorf is a graduate of Kingston Academy of the class of 1915. The commissioner has planned to take advantage of this opportunity to inspect the fire departments and apparatus of Albany, Pittsfield, Westfield, Springfield, Holyoke, Chicopee Falls and Boston. At the next meeting of the board of fire commissioners he will no doubt have something new to offer under the head of "for the good of the fire department."

In City Court.
In city court this morning the case of Joseph M. Fowler as agent of Glenford L. Fischer against Philip Schmitt and Emma Schmitt was adjourned until October 8. The action is in summary proceedings. The plaintiff appeared in person and the tenant by John T. Cahill.

An adjournment was also taken in the case of L. S. Winne & Company against Martha Van Antwerp, an action to recover for merchandise. D. G. Atkins represented the plaintiff.

ENGLAND LETS UP ON TRADE RESTRICTION

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 24.—Simultaneously with the improvement in the relations between Germany and the United States, due to concessions by the Teutonic government, has come a lessening of pressure on American trade by Great Britain. While the latter situation is still far from satisfactory officials believe that the concessions made in the last 48 hours will open the door for others of far greater moment to this country.

As a result of the conferences between Sir Richard Crawford, the British embassy's trade expert, Acting Secretary of State Polk, Chandler Anderson and Judge Fleming, representing this government, an agreement has been reached whereby the British embassy here will now issue clearance papers to American importers which will insure the bringing to this country of all goods purchased from German and Austrian sources prior to March 1, last. The Holland American and other neutral lines have refused to accept such goods, but it is expected that as soon as the new agreement is announced they will load them on bills of sale that will have the British consul's "O. K." hereto.

It has been the desire to get the goods disposed of before any other action was taken that has delayed presentation of the note of protest against the British order in council and the placing of cotton on the contraband list. So soon as the formal agreement of pending questions has been approved the state department will start its indirect protest Londonward.

The German situation is expected to be completely cleared up soon after Secretary of State Lansing returns here next week. It is understood that Count von Bernstorff quietly has advised the department that he will be ready to meet the wishes of the United States on the Arabic question. And, inasmuch as Germany has officially denied that any German submarine attacked the Itesperian it is not now thought here that this government will take an issue there, especially as it is admitted that the liner was armed. A precedent for a changed policy by this government in the question of merchantmen carrying guns has been set in the case of the British steamer Walmann which after being held up in Newport News harbor for six weeks, finally was compelled to dismount her four guns. If she was an armed ship under the new rulings of the state department then she must have been the Itesperian and therefore she could not be classed as a "peaceful merchantman."

MEXICO CITY FACES FAMINE
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 24.—Mexico City again is facing famine. State department advices today say that the light, power, food and water supply is very limited. Street car service is practically suspended and there is only sufficient fuel on hand to permit operation of the lighting plant until next Monday. The water supply is so short that water runs only for about an hour a day.

In addition it is reported that the Zapata forces are harassing the Carranza forces and have won victories in several local engagements. They destroyed an entire freight train laden with food-stuffs from Vera Cruz forty miles from Mexico City last Monday.

Eichler Discharged.
August Eichler, of the town of Shandaken, who has been held under a severe bond, has been discharged and the bond cancelled. The case was brought to the attention of Judge Jenkins in county court on Thursday afternoon by Assistant District Attorney Tracer, who said that the complainant, Susan Eichler, did not care to press the charge and asked that bond be cancelled. Judge Jenkins granted the request.

Dr. Moore Returned to Kingston.
The New York conference of the Free Methodist Church met in annual session last week in Walton, N. Y. The Rev. J. H. Moore was returned to the pastorate of the Kingston society of that church.

GERMANS RETREAT NORTH OF PINSK

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, Sept. 24.—(By wireless)—Field Marshal von Mackensen's army has been forced to retreat before the Russians in the region of Logoschin. The Czar's forces in that district, which is north of Pinsk, suddenly launched an enveloping movement that put von Mackensen's forces in a dangerous position and they were forced to withdraw from the east and northeast of Logoschin.

Today's report of the general staff also admits a minor victory for the Russians at Vileika. While the retreating Russians were proceeding along the Lida-Petrograd railway they turned upon their pursuers and in the fighting which followed took several cannon.

The official report claims further success for Field Marshal von Hindenburg before Dvinsk and for Prince Leopold of Bavaria, farther to the south. It announces the recapture of the villages of Rose and Strigge, together with more positions before Dvinsk. The Germans took 1,000 more prisoners.

Prince Leopold's army has broken the resistance of the Russians along the entire front, the report states. It has now reached the Serchiv river district.

MEXICANS ATTACK AMERICAN TROOPS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Brownsville, Texas, Sept. 24.—Carranzista soldiers who had crossed the Rio Grande under cover of darkness attacked American soldiers at Progresso, 45 miles west of Brownsville today, killing Private Stubbfield of Troop C, Twelfth Cavalry, and wounding Captain A. V. Anderson and Private Kennedy.

Captain Anderson, who was in command of the American troops, reported that the Mexicans who attacked his men were a Carranza force numbering between 30 and 40 men. Seventeen other Carranza soldiers were sighted on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande.

The Mexicans ambushed the American soldiers, who were patrolling the border. They suddenly opened fire from the mesquite bushes among which they were hidden. Private Stubbfield fell at the first fire and Captain Anderson and Private Kennedy were wounded before they could get to cover.

The troopers replied to the fire, pouring bullets into the mesquite bushes, while help was summoned from other patrols.

Another report that reached here said that the Americans were attacked while asleep and that the Mexicans got the guns of ten of the troopers, who fled four miles to their camp to get more weapons.

Late this forenoon the Mexicans were still reported on the north side of the river, while their companions on the Mexican side were firing at the troopers.

ORDER A TRIAL CASE

PETER BARMANN

BREWERY 'PHONE 66

KINGSTON, N. Y.

CITY WINS VERDICT IN LAVELLE CASE

After deliberating a little over an hour the jury in the action brought by Thomas Lavelle of Hunter street against the city of Kingston to recover $2,000 damages rendered a verdict of no cause of action in county court on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Lavelle was injured last November when hit by a limb from a tree that stood in front of the residence of Palmer A. Canfield, No. 72 McEntee street. The action against the city was brought on the grounds that the city was negligent in not having some of its employees see to it that the limb that hit Lavelle had not been removed from the tree because of its rotten condition. Mr. Lavelle attempted to prove by the evidence of Dr. William Downer, a tree expert, that the hard maple trees along the streets where shale brick is laid are decaying and that the tree that stood in front of the Canfield residence was a hard maple. Seven residents of the city, some of whom saw the tree every day, swore that it was a horse chestnut tree and that the limb of the tree that hit Lavelle was not rotten. It was also brought out that there was a hard wind storm at the time of the accident and that trees on the side hill across from the Canfield residence had been blown down and that on Green street another large tree had been blown down and that billboards and limbs from trees were blown down all over the city. The city contended that the limb that hit Lavelle had fallen not because it was rotten but because of the heavy wind. The case was ably presented for Mr. Lavelle by Judge N. Frank and for the city by William D. Brinnier. The action in behalf of the city.

The prosperity of a city is in direct proportion to the local price. Where local pride runs high, prosperity has a firm foothold. Such a town is a good place to live and do business in.

Paint helps to a remarkable degree in spreading an impression of prosperity throughout a community. It gives a fresh, new, inviting look wherever it is used. Municipal buildings, stores and homes feel its good effects. Growing business is bound to be one of the direct results of a liberal use of paint, not from any magic in the paint, but because of the price which is stimulated.

Woman's World

Our Lighthouse Lady Teaches Europe's War Blind Men.

by Underwood & Underwood

MISS WINIFRED HOLT.

Miss Winifred Holt, secretary of the New York Association For the Blind, writes from Paris, where she has gone to establish with the help of French military authorities permanent surroundings and occupations for soldiers blinded by war.

"The purposes of the committee are to aid the blind sufferers, some of whom are marooned in improvised hospitals, farmhouses or chateaux, and many of whom are segregated in the large hospitals or Red Cross stations."

"The committee will send visitors and teachers to these blind soldiers, furnish them with entertainment through reading, games, etc., and for those physically able it will start the task of putting eyes on their finger tips and giving them 'light through work'."

"We have found all the blind men in the hospitals of Paris and some in their homes. I estimate that there must be from 3,000 to 4,000 blind soldiers in this immediate neighborhood."

"We have begun teaching in the hospitals here and have among our pupils two very interesting and grateful blind officers who will make good teachers and attractive agents for the Paris Lighthouse when it is opened."

"The committee will seek to consider the men's individual interests and abilities and as far as possible to train them in trades and occupations for which their blindness has temporarily unfitted them or to find new openings in which they may become wage earners."

"When they have become proficient it is hoped wherever possible to return them to their home surroundings with the knowledge and tools to make them self helpful. When this is not practical it is hoped to establish them in congenial surroundings, where they may again have a feeling of independence and well-being. Without prompt expert assistance soon after loss of sight the blind man is apt to become despondent, to lose his intelligence or to drift into an apathy from which it is difficult, if not impossible, to arouse him later."

"The work is very heartrending, but unspeakably essential. We found a blind soldier the other day who had not left his room in the hospital since the accident and was afraid to walk. After we told him of Fawcett's wonderful life the man jumped up, looking a new human being, and, to the amazement of his nurse and everybody else, strode forth, with his head lifted high, into the corridor and walked up and down with his hands behind his back like any other proud man. That is what hope does for these people, who were desperate until we brought them light."

"I wrote you last week of the young officer who was blind, had lost his arm and had only two fingers remaining on his right hand. He is doing wonderfully and is full of hope and light. His fiance comes from Corsica to see him at the end of the week. I am to see her before she has the shock of receiving what remains of her soldier, so as to prepare her to appreciate what life may still hold for them both."

"Miss Holt wrote that there should be a corps of at least fifty teachers to cope with the work and that funds were badly needed for materials for work and clothes. She hopes her American friends will send her a million dollars. I can use all of it and to good purpose," she writes.

A Wedding Breakfast.
Serve a fruit cocktail for the first course. This must be ice cold and the fruit prepared long enough in advance for the several flavors to be well blended. Follow this with creamed chicken and mushrooms and potato and nut croquettes, else chicken croquettes and peas, with finger rolls, then tomato salad with dressing and last the ice cream, cake and coffee. Any light wine will be suitable. If there is no objection to its use, serve with chicken course. Sliced pineapple, grapefruit and orange pulp make a delicious cocktail. Prepare each separately and sweeten to taste. Let stand on ice several hours; then mix and let stand overnight on ice. Serve in sherbet glasses with maraschino cherry on top of each.

Another Way.
"Why don't you throw away this old ink? It is of no use to any one."
"But that would make me feel wasteful!"
"Then give it away and feel charitable."—Exchange.

RAYMOND TALKS ON "GETTING RESULTS"

Frank Jewel Raymond gave his second talk on "Making Good in Business," under the management of the Chamber of Commerce, at the high school building on Thursday evening to a large and thinking audience. It was as though Mr. Raymond's first talk had been the flash of flame, illuminating the sky and challenging the attention of the beholder, yet that flash of brilliancy was but the indication of the inner heat which was felt and burned in the second talk of last evening.

Mr. Kearney, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, in opening the meeting, defined the requirements for securing the prizes for the best essays on Mr. Raymond's talks. Each such essay shall contain from 800 to 1,000 words; shall be sent to J. E. Canfield, No. 91 Orchard street, Kingston, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, not later than October 4. A prize of $5 will be given for the best essay written by an employed woman; a similar prize for the best essay by an employed man; and still another similar prize for the best essay by a high school student. The judges will be Mayor Canfield, Edward Corkendall and Superintendent Michael.

Mr. Kearney called the attention of the audience to the work being done by the new secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and said that the purchase and occupation of the old Peckham works plant by the Remington motor people was now an assured fact. In introducing Mr. Raymond to those who had not heard him before, Mr. Kearney expressed sincere regret that it would be the last time within the year that the people of Kingston would be privileged to hear Mr. Raymond speak in Kingston.

Mr. Raymond, who was given a most cordial welcome, announced his topic as "Getting Results." He reminded his audience that in ordering a meal at a hotel, no one would think of ordering everything on the menu card, but each person would order what appealed to their particular taste. So, out of his evening's talk, he would not expect any one to be equally impressed with all that he might say, but he hoped that everyone would take away with them what might be useful and helpful to him or her. And a newspaper account of his talk, of necessity missing his personality and being general must lose much of the forcefulness of the spoken address.

"Personality" was shown to be a foremost quality in getting results; and personality is the sum total of body, mind and soul, presenting in the individual the accumulation of life's experiences. The speaker again emphasized the necessity for a sufficient amount of sleep at night to be awake by day with one's personality alive. The right sort of approach to one's customer, whether in a profession or business was of vital importance; the claiming and holding of their attention. There are eye-minded people and ear-minded people, those who are approached most effectively through the eye or the ear. Know which sort you are dealing with and connect with those major mental wires, and if it is a case of merchandising, add the third wire of touch, and the well known fact that with three major wires occupied there is no room in the mind for other thoughts at that time, is proven. Having gained attention, one must next create desire on the part of the customer.

"Order takers," "Order makers" and "Order takers" were all pictured in one experience of the speaker's. Passing a hardware shop, he was attracted by a display of certain shirts in the show window. Entering the store he said he wanted two such shirts of a specified size. The "order taker" presented the goods and added "Here are some other designs you may like. They are not shown in the window," and the speaker bought two more of the "order maker." "You wouldn't care to look at underwear, or hats or gloves, would you?" and the "order shaker" lost his hold by his negative way of presenting the subject. It pays to be positive; it never pays to be negative.

Three things were shown to be necessary for the getting of results: a plan, a schedule of dispatch, a plan of action or a dispatch. Then the schedule for carrying out the plan must be arranged and the thing must be done with dispatch.

In any line of business there are "lookers," "purchasers," and "customers." The successful "salesperson," not "sales-person," will convert the looker into the purchaser (casual buyer) and later, by giving satisfactory service the purchaser will be changed to a customer. But satisfactory service must be given, and no one need think for a moment that they can get away from service in this world, if they are to be successful.

The difference in "thrift" and unbridled ambition were made clear by the story of a young millionaire who had risen from an employee a million, in eighteen years, but who had become a stranger to his wife and children, losing the contentment, sympathy and inspiration of those nearest and dearest. Ambition did not begot success, for there is no success without contentment.

Stress was again laid upon the necessity of love and harmony in one's family, (who have a right to the goodness in one). If one is to know real success, "Five sorts of 'willing' (the motive power of accomplishment), were described as follows: "The I can't kind; the 'I wish I could' kind; having a wish bone in the place of a backbone; the 'I hope I can' sort; the dead-alive sort who are in a rut, which differs from a grave in its width and depth only; the 'you bet I can,' the bragging kind who do not fulfill their promises; and finally, the right sort, 'I will,' people who do. In the excitement of watching any race, the on-lookers shout, 'Go on! Go on! Go on!' So, no matter how discouraged one might become, nothing on earth could keep him or her from success if in the depths of discouragement they would keep saying (and doing) 'I will go on.'

In closing, Mr. Raymond said that he sincerely hoped that some word of real helpfulness might have been spoken, some line of thought set in motion, some right action inspired as the result of the "passing of the ship in the night," which was really what his coming to the people of Kingston was.

A few questions were asked, mainly important as showing the soundness of Mr. Raymond's judgment, taken unawares, and his knowledge of fundamental and therefore vital principles of successful business.

Whatever individual good he may have done, and he did much, this good result must have been attained. Two large audiences had visualized before them the success that will follow clear, sound, careful, reasonable and considerate thinking. The people of this community are indeed indebted to the Chamber of Commerce for bringing Mr. Raymond to Kingston, and all who were so fortunate as to hear him, hope that he will come again.

WEST SHOKAN.

West Shokan, Sept. 22.—Mrs. J. A. Smith returned from a visit to New York on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones of Kingston have been spending a few days with their granddaughter, Mrs. E. East.

Mrs. F. Sharwell of Rhode Island is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Bell.

E. Burgher was knocked down by a cow and cut his hand so bad that he is under the care of Dr. Hibbard of Brown's Station.

Mrs. George Warren has returned to her home after a two weeks' stay at the home of her father, R. Eckert. Ralph Bell is ill.

Lena Smith is ill with throat trouble.

The farewell dance of the season will be given on Saturday evening. It is hoped that those that bring intoxicating drinks there to sell, and those that come there to make trouble will stay away, for they are the kind of people that do not respect themselves and surely don't others. Why is it that these booze places cannot be stopped, for they are not only a disgrace in a neighborhood but are making trouble in some of our best families.

Virgil Winchell has purchased a new automobile.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, Sept. 23.—H. B. DeWitt and family motored to Phillipsport on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Jennie Hoar returned from Unadilla on Thursday.

James Chase has moved in his new store.

Grace Garrison spent Sunday at home.

The ladies cleaned the Reformed Church on Wednesday.

Charles Sanford has returned to Brooklyn.

The Store That Aims To Please

We are working every day of the year except Sundays to please you. When not convenient to shop in the day time any of our salesmen will come back at night or holiday to wait on you.

We have three delivery wagons and one auto for delivery service. The store is divided up into several departments.

- A—Furniture Department.
- B—Floor Coverings and Draperies.
- C—Housefurnishings.
- D—Crochery and Glassware.
- E—Upholstering Shop.
- F—Finishing Department.
- G—Repairing and Cabinet Work.

Expert men have charge of every department. We desire to cater to the most exacting demands. And we desire also to be informed at once of any inattention or rudeness on the part of any of our employees. They have positive instruction to be polite and painstaking with every order. We have more than 3,000 customers' names on our books, many that have been our patrons for more than 30 years. We are desirous of keeping them all as friends and customers and we want new ones every day. We do not claim to sell cheaper than anyone else. We do claim that NO one sells better goods for any less than we do. If we are in fault at any part of our service, tell us about it. We will try to remedy the matter and do better the next time. We MAKE goods here. We have a busy factory.

For instance, we sold double as many $15.00 box springs this year than last year. We made more $23.00 hair mattresses than we did last year. We finish in our own factory all the chairs we sell. We are ready to finish to your order at no extra charge Dining-room Furniture in Fumed Oak, Kaiser Grey, Moss Green, Early English, or we will match your house trim in shade without additional price. Don't send away for your furniture. Give us a chance first and then if we fail you it will be OUR fault. We have sold more goods in July and August than we did last year and it looks as though we were going to have a busy fall. Some goods are getting scarce.—Floor Coverings especially. Don't wait too long to select them. Visitors especially welcome. Come in and look around. We won't urge you to buy. Take your time. There are so many things to see.

Scientific Farming

WHEN TO SOW ALFALFA.

Some Farmers Prefer Spring and Others the Fall.

The soil for alfalfa should have plenty of humus. A deep, rich, sandy loam will grow alfalfa to perfection. The land should be well drained, for alfalfa will not be a success on swamp land, says a contributor to Farm Progress.

There is a difference of opinion as to when alfalfa should be sown. Some prefer the spring and others the fall. I think one should be governed by conditions of climate and soil. In those sections where there is little moisture in the fall and the winters are exceedingly cold spring seeding is preferable. Soil that tends to bake on account of drought will give better results when seeded in the spring. When seeded in the fall the roots go into winter quarters very tender and are apt to be winter killed.

When there is plenty of moisture and soil is alluvial and sandy and winters light, fall seeding is recommended because the alfalfa can be sown after the season's crop is harvested. When planting in the early spring one should be certain to wait until all danger from frost has passed. The soil should be harrowed and disked until it is like an ash bank, then packed until it is firm below. Lack of thorough preparation of soil is the cause of more failures to get a stand of alfalfa than anything else.

When alfalfa is planted in the spring, it should have a nurse crop. Cattle are considered the best nurse crop in certain sections. They shade the ground and protect the young plants from the hot summer sun and at the same time give a profitable crop. The ground should be full of moisture when planting the seed so that it will come right up and start to growing.

Acres of Farm Lands.

The last federal census shows the total number of farms in the United States to be 6,261,502, containing 578,798,225 acres.

The land in farms represents 46.2 per cent, or less than one-half of the total land area of the country. Of the total acreage given only 478,451,750 acres are classed as "improved land." The balance comprises wood land and other unimproved land in farms. The improved land given above is only about 25.1 per cent of the total area of the country. The average size of farms, as shown by the last census, is 138.1 acres of which an average of 75.2 acres are improved, and 62.9 acres unimproved.

BEEES IN SEPTEMBER.

September is a month that often brings hope to discouraged beekeepers who for one reason or another have failed to secure a crop of honey from the earlier sources, such as the clovers. Experience has proved that often the fall flow exceeds the earlier one.

This may be the result of two causes. It may be that the colonies were so weak from winter losses or spring dwindling that they were not strong enough to take advantage of even an abundant flow, or the lack of an early crop may have been the result of real lack of nectar secreted by the flowers.

There is an ever increasing number of progressive beekeepers who during September take from the hives every drop of honey, not only from the supers, but from the brood nest as well, and in its place they feed sugar syrup and make the bees depend exclusively upon it, and there is much to be said in favor of this plan.

The honey from the fall flowers is full of pollen grains, and too much of this eaten by the bees during the winter is liable to cause dysentery, especially if the bees are kept in winter repositories, and by giving the hives clear sugar syrup in place of the honey taken there is a decided gain, not only in the health of the colony so treated, but a gain in dollars, as the honey we take from them will sell for more than the sugar syrup will cost.

Was It Spirit Or Illusion?

By F. A. MITCHEL

There is nothing so strong in nature as the chains that draw two persons together, and nothing better typifies it than two vines that originally could have been broken apart by a child's delicate fingers, each becoming after a lapse of, say, half a century as large as an athlete's biceps and much harder to bend.

The most remarkable case of this kind came under my observation. I will relate the story.

Donald Gregory, when he was too young to remember the fact, became a playmate of a little girl about his own age, Ella Markston. Their parents' places were side by side, and the children, neither having brother or sister, were together all day. Then they went to the same kindergarten and afterward to the same school. Their first and only separation was when Donald went to college. They pined for each other, and he neglected his studies to write her long letters, receiving equally long replies. When the first examinations came on, though a bright fellow, he failed. This ended his college career. He returned to his love and was never again separated from her till half a century later, when death claimed her.

They were married when the groom was nineteen, the bride eighteen. A son was born to them and a daughter. The former lived; the latter died in infancy. Till the son came to manhood he remained with his parents. Then he broke away to engage in business at another location.

Even in their youth they had few intimate associates and after coming to middle age dropped away from anything social. Those who knew them wondered at this, for they were both attractive and popular. Efforts to get them into social undertakings always failed.

Mrs. Gregory died at seventy. It was a year after this that I made the acquaintance of their son, now a man of nearly fifty. Strange it is that with his parents' happy married life before him he never married. When his mother died he persuaded his father to come to live with him. I had made George Gregory's acquaintance some time before this, and when his father appeared on the scene George and I, both bachelors, were intimate. I being at his house frequently.

When I was introduced to his father I saw a handsome old gentleman with a firm, capable, and white hair and mustache. It struck me that if I were a woman I would fall in love with him no matter what was his age. George told me of the close relationship between his father and his late mother, and when the latter died he feared his father would be a life loner. But his father seemed to settle down to an acceptance of his fate and in a measure apparently ceased to grieve. His son noticed something no one. I discovered it for myself.

One day when going to George Gregory's house I saw his father putting his right leg into the door. He opened it, stepped back as if waiting for some one to enter, then went in himself. The matter made but little impression on me till later I heard the old gentleman talking to himself in the library. At first, thinking that he was reading aloud, I permitted myself to overhear him. I soon became aware that he was talking to some one whom he called "my dear." The two episodes together set me to wondering, and I narrated them to his son, George, who smiled and said:

"So you have noticed it. I have known that of which you have seen evidence ever since father came to live with me. He ever has my mother with him—just how I don't know. Whether he sees her spirit, whether he fancies that it is present with him, whether he hears her replies when he talks to her—all this is a puzzle to me. I have often heard him talking to her as you heard him, and he says the same things to her that he was used to saying while she lived, only they are more endearing. He was always during her life as gallant to her as when they were young lovers, and when he fancies she is with him he will not sit while she stands, will not go through a doorway without waiting till she has gone before him. I have seen him come into the house after having been out of an evening and remove her wraps as tenderly as he ever did while she was with him in the flesh. He had a way of sometimes walking with her in his hand, and when her death I have often seen him swinging his arm through the empty air as I often saw him do it when I was a boy."

"Do you observe," I asked, "whether after apparently being with her he is more or less gloomy?"

"He is never what we call gloomy, though there is a certain sadness at times in his eyes. It seems to me that Providence, in whose sight such loving lives as were his and my mother's must be acceptable, has made some physical change in his brain which causes an illusion to comfort him till the day shall come when he will be reunited to her."

"Did it ever occur to you," I asked, "that the strong affection between him and your mother has enabled him to see and commune with her spirit?"

"It has," was the reply, "but I don't know."

Since then the same door has closed behind Donald Gregory that closed behind his wife.

Scared by Mirrors.

When cannibals attacked Captain Greenhill and crew of the British ship George Fleming off the coast of Patagonia the Britishers held up mirrors in front of the savages, and when the latter saw their images they fled in fright.

WHAT FEE-SPLITTING IS.

Buying and Selling of Patients by Physicians and Surgeons.

Dr. W. A. Evans here gives plain facts about fee-splitting among physicians and surgeons. He explains why the practice is the buying and selling of patients. Also why the practice leads to second or third rate medical service. His article is reprinted by a special permission of the Chicago Daily Tribune.

"This company retains as counsel attorneys causing trusts to be committed to its care."
"This institution offers and invites co-operation with lawyers by retaining their services in connection with all matters of trust they commit to its care."

The above advertisements for years have appeared regularly in the advertising section of the Chicago Lawyers' Directory. The concerns advertising have their own lawyers, men especially trained in the work of carrying for estates. The lawyer bringing the business to them and for it receiving a commission will not do any work except it be such work as is ordinarily delegated to clerks and minor assistants. In a word, this is fee-splitting.

If a piece of real estate is sold, the probability is that two brokerage fees will be paid—one to a selling broker and another to a buying broker. Very often it happens that the sale is made direct, and the brokers have no part in the transaction. They get their fees just the same.

If a Chicago man, owning an automobile made by a Buffalo firm maintaining an agency salesroom and shop in Chicago, sends his machine to the Buffalo plant for repairs without any conference with the Chicago agency, the Chicago agency will get its brokerage on the bill.

These are all illustrations of fee-splitting. The legal right of the broker to his fee, even when he had no direct right in the transaction, has been established by scores of court decisions. Let us say, then, that fee-splitting is established both by custom and by law. This being true, is fee-splitting among medical men established by law or by custom, and also, is it legal or moral, or both legal and moral?

Wisconsin has had an anti-fee-splitting law for several years. As the old law proved unavailing, a new one has recently been placed on the statute books.

Among other states having laws against fee-splitting are Ohio and Iowa. I do not know that the legality of any of these laws has been passed upon by a supreme court. That is probably due to the fact that no great effort has been made to enforce them. At the present time we can say that in some States fee-splitting by medical men is illegal. In no state is it specifically legal.

The American College of Surgeons, the American Medical Association, and the various state and local medical societies have condemned fee-splitting by formal vote. It is evident that fee-splitting among medical men is not the custom, and that such of it as is done in condemnation by medical organizations. It is practiced by only a small proportion of the operators, and they not of high standing. The proportion of fee-splitting is even smaller still.

Should fee-splitting among doctors be illegal and condemned, while among lawyers and business men it is approved by law, custom, and public opinion? If so, why? Another question: Why is it discussed in this column?

Fee-splitting among physicians should not be allowed to become the custom. Why? Because of the abuses to which it leads.

How is it worked? The answer to this question shows some of the possibilities for abuse. A man consults a physician. The physician examines him and tells him he needs an operation. The sick man asks who is to do the operation. If the fee-splitter has an understanding with some one as to his commission, he suggests the man. The probability is that he will say to the patient, "I expect to be running into the city about that time. I will take you in." When they reach the city, they see the operator together. The patient may be told that the home doctor is to assist at the operation.

In the worst case of this group, the home doctor arranges the amount of the fee, collects it, and pays the operator, relieving the patient of all those details. In some, the operator collects saying nothing to the patient about any payment to the physician who came with him. The patient can be certain that the family physician does not assist at the operation. An operating room organization arranges that each assistant shall have his work cut out for him. Team work is a necessity. Each assistant must know how to anticipate the next move of the operator. If an outside physician is allowed on the operating floor he may be permitted to put on a gown and stand close by, but he must not touch any instrument. The statement that the physician is paid for assisting cannot be substantiated.

If the physician has not established connections with fee-splitters and wishes to get a portion of the fee, he may tell his patient that he will find out who is the best man to operate on him. Meanwhile, he may write for bids. The physician at home generally has a suspicion as to which operators can safely be approached on the proposition of splitting a fee.

On the other side, operators in search of business sometimes send out letters in which proposals for fee-splitting are made. Within certain limitations, the fee-splitting operators know to whom, among the non-operating physicians it is safe to send such a proposal.

When a patient asks his physician to select an operator for him, he has a right to expect that the physician will give him the name of a thoroughly capable man. More than that, he should expect the name of an operator who suits the circumstances of his case best. If his physician is a fee-splitter, what he gets is the name of the fee-splitting operator with whom the physician has been able to make satisfactory terms.

Should the patient learn the facts and ask the fee-splitting family physician to justify himself, the physician would explain that he was underpaid; that the operator was overpaid, and that he had a right to a sufficient portion of the fee to even up. His answer might satisfy a person easily satisfied. Furthermore, he would claim that the operator selected was competent. To select any other would be bad business policy. This answer appears sound, and it, no doubt, would satisfy a person easily satisfied.

But let us dig a little deeper and see if the facts disclosed by the digging help the fee-splitter. The immediate answer to the fee-splitter is this: If fee-splitting is a justifiable transaction, then let those who practice it come right out in the open. Let the physician concerned tell the patient that the fee is to be split, and the basis on which it is split.

Theoretically, this is a partial remedy, but, practically, it fails, because nobody will do it, or practically nobody. An open fee-splitter confesses his incompetence. What happens under the present method? The very competent operators do not split fees. They know they are competent and they get, and will get, the business which comes to them on a basis of merit. The operators who split fees are second and third grade operators. Therefore, a patient who is being disposed of by fee-splitters, among fee-splitters, may be certain that the best he can get is one of the best among the second or third grade men. He can be certain that he never has a chance to get the services of any high grade man, of any man good enough to get business on his merit alone.

The first coil, then, Mr. Patient, is that you get at best a second grade man, though you pay the price of first grade service.

An operation is not a light matter. Operations are to be avoided where it is good judgment to avoid them. At best they are the lesser of evils.

With the above statement in mind, what is your answer to the following questions?

If physicians are bartering patients among fee-splitters as a commercial transaction, will not unnecessary operations be the inevitable result?

If a physician diagnoses an infected appendix and sends the patient to a fee-splitter, is it not possible that the diagnosis will be confirmed, regardless of the condition found, and an operation done?

To summarize: The results of fee-splitting are several. The patient of the fee-splitter pays more for the service than the operator in the case is accustomed to receiving. The fee collected for like service must satisfy two men, the operator and the attending physician, as well as pay the expenses of the unnecessary attendance of the physician on the trip to town.

As a class, he is operated on by a man of little training and small experience, by a second rate man, unable to get business on an open, straight-forward merit basis. He is in danger of being operated on needlessly, with danger to his life and health.

The man who is cared for by the fee-splitter does not get a fair deal. That is a part of the reason for this article. No physician can practice fee-splitting without degenerating. In time he becomes known as a fee-splitter. That hurts his standing. It makes people suspicious of him, of his opinions and advice. Accepting or paying secret commissions reacts on the moral and mental tone of the physician. Acknowledging to himself that he gets business because he pays for it, he will not work as hard to perfect himself, and to keep abreast of the time, as he otherwise would. Fee-splitting is bad for the men who practice it. That is a part of the reason for this article.

PLAYERS HAVE AIDED IN TEAMS' SUCCESS

Vic Saler and Buck Weaver.

The Chicago teams in both National and American leagues have been either on the top or very close to the top of the pennant races all season, and no two players have contributed more to the success of the rival organizations than Vic Saler and Buck Weaver. Saler is the hard-hitting, smooth-working first baseman of the Chicago Cubs. He is rated as one of the most dangerous men in a pinch in the older league. He is hitting well over the 300 mark and, in addition, leads the league in long-distance drives. Weaver is the shortstop of the White Sox, one of the most sensational fielders in his position in the American league. He is also a good hitter, and a base runner better than the average.

LEARN JOHNSON IS BEATABLE

Previous to This Season It Was Custom of Opposing Managers to Send Weak Pitchers Against Him.

This looks as if it might be about the hardest year that Walter Johnson has had. There are seven clubs in the American league that are after him this year. When Johnson was at the peak of his game he had the American league rolling over and playing dead for him. It was the understanding that when Johnson pitched he was sure to win, so the managers got into the habit of sending in weak pitchers to oppose him. In those days the Washington club got runs for Johnson.

It's another story now. The other seven clubs have learned that Johnson is beatable; that if one keeps his eyes open and his muscles taut he is likely to be able to whang the ball

FOOTBALL SEASON NOW HERE

Appearance of Annual Guide Sounds Doom of Summer—Rough Play Is Eliminated From Game.

Summer's doom is sounded, as it always has been for more years than Walter Camp cares to remember, by the appearance of the annual football guide from the pen of Yale's justly famous football alumnus. The book is full of new information, not the least of which is the codification of the rules for 1915 and the schedules of practically every school and college eleven in the country.

As has been the case since 1905, when the first great reform wave struck football, the essence of most of the changes in the rules this season has to do with the elimination of rough play. Furthermore, the committee has taken a half step in the direction of numbering all players on the field by recommending that numbers be worn. The success which numbering players in college basketball games and in the few games in which numbers were used by football teams last fall has achieved, brought the rule committee around to the way of thinking.

The presence of a field judge on the gridiron has been made obligatory. This means that henceforth there will be three officials on the field of play and the head linesman on the sidelines. It is from the linesman that most of the duties of the field judge have been taken, the object being to leave the former free to observe the particular province of the game which he is detailed to watch, particularly offside play.

Already some of the college squads have begun work, and more than one small boy has ushered in the season on the vacant lots with bangs and bruises.

SPORT NOW DEAD IN CANADA

Hundreds of Leading Athletes of Dominion Have Shouldered Guns and Are Fighting in Europe.

Sport throughout the Dominion of Canada is as dead as the proverbial doornail.

The reason for it all is the war, and until the great European conflict has passed into history Canadians will be without sport on a major scale. Efforts to hold local tournaments and national track and field championships have been fairly successful, but on the whole interest has been lacking.

Numbered among the thousands of Canadians who have shouldered the gun and are now fighting for the empire are hundreds of the leading athletes of the dominion. Many have fallen in battle and lie "somewhere in France," with a small headstone to mark their last resting place.

Travers Never Misses the Ground.

Jerry Travers is said not to have swung on a ball and missed or taken up the sod behind a ball for a three-inch shot since the days when he used to play around in his back yard and holed out his ball by hitting a tree. Many duffers who swing on the ball and fracture a rib without touching the thing are said to be slightly envious of Travers' little weakness in being able to get off a straight ball and true about every time he tries his hand.

Speed of Ball Games.

SEK O Loughlin says the speed with which a ball game is played depends on the pitchers, but it has always looked as if the umpires had a lot to do with it.

The Cruel Reason.

Mrs. Gossip—How does it come that Mrs. North invited you to her party? I thought you were enemies. Mrs. Sharp—We are, but she thought I had nothing fit to wear and wanted to make me feel bad.

Walter Johnson.

back as fast as it comes up. To beat Johnson gives a club prestige. So the attitude of the seven managers has changed. They used to say when Johnson started pitching, "Well, here's a game gone." Now they send in their strongest pitchers and fight harder against Johnson than against any other pitcher.

The Washington club finds it harder to make runs for Johnson than any other of its pitchers, and the Kansas comet is learning that the life of the conspicuous is not always a happy one.

Will Bear Watching

Ducky Henderson, pitcher of the Charleston (W. Va.) team, pitched two games the other day and sent the other fellows out without a hit in the first game and allowed only five hits in the second game.

Boy Pitches Remarkable Game.

Pitcher Maden Harris, nineteen years old, of Dallas, Texas, struck out 20 out of 29 batters to face him. He will be watched by the big league scouts for further records.

In the Game.

"I am in the hands of my friends," said the political hostess. "Yes," replied the harsh critic, "and every time your friends look over their hands they seem impatient for a new deal." Washington Star.

GOV. WILLIAM SPRY

UTAH'S GOVERNOR THREATENED.

Salt Lake City, Sept. 22.—Governor William Spry and his family are being closely guarded because of threats which have been pouring in during the last few days from every part of the United States because of the propaganda instituted by the I. W. W. to prevent the execution of James Hillstrom, condemned murderer.

Some of the threats have been veiled and some have been direct. The majority of the letters demand the release of Hillstrom in the name of labor. A letter from Paducah, Ky., threatened the life of one or both of the children of the governor, if Hillstrom is executed.

Hillstrom will be shot on Oct. 1.

Marriage and Mathematics.

"Yes," said the old mathematician, with a gleam in his eyes. "I've always looked at it that way. Marriage is addition; when the little ones come it's multiplication; when dissension looms up to cloud the horizon of their happiness it's division, and when the final parting comes it's subtraction."

"And how about divorce?" asked the listener.

"Oh, that would come under the denomination of fractions!"—London Telegraph.

VASSIL RADOSLAVOFF

CENTER OF BALKAN STORM.

Premier Vassil Radoslavoff, of Bulgaria, who is the center of storm in the latest Balkan crisis. Junks of both the central powers and the allies are prevailing upon Bulgaria to enter the war. The Germans and Austrians have already begun their march through Serbia for "Constantinople" to relieve the pressure on the Turks there. It is believed that the Austro-German plan is to march through Bulgaria, once the Serbians are beaten back.

A BLAZE IN JAPAN

Yelling Mobs Throng the Streets When a Fire Starts.
IN A FRENZY OF EXCITEMENT.

Every Native in Town Makes a Mad Dash For the Scene of the Conflagration and Chaos Reigns Supreme. Even a Small Fire is a Big Event.

A fire is a great event in Japan. One would think that, inasmuch as the flimsy construction of the Japanese houses and their packing together make fires of almost daily occurrence—in the cities, at any rate—fires would have lost a portion of their novelty during the ten or fifteen centuries Japan has regularly been burning down. They have not, though. When the fire bell begins to toll the whole population goes to the fire.

I was in a Jintokusha in Yokohama on my way to the railroad station when I heard the clangor of a bell, and the coolie who was drawing me shouted: "Kwaji! Kwaji!"—or what sounded like that—and displayed strong evidences of breaking into a gallop. "Sore wa nanigusaka?" I inquired politely, remembering from my phrase book, "What is that?"

"Kwaji!" he shouted. "Kwaji!" And so it fell out that we went to the fire—the coolie, the Jintokusha and myself—for I had no words to stop him except a very uncertain "Tomaru!" And he did not choose to tarry.

The coolie galloped down one street and up another, and in ten minutes I was in the midst of 20,000 people clad in every style of Japanese dress, and all running backward and forward. Not a man walked. All ran. They were so interested and excited that I thought they must be shareholders in the shanties which were burning.

A man dashed wildly to one end of the street elbowing people out of his way, stepping on them, pushing against them, and then he stopped, emitted a wild screech and dashed back again. I say one man did that. In reality a thousand did it on each of the four sides of the block in which the fire was, unconcernedly and in a casual and unimpeded manner, demolishing some small houses.

Other thousands—many of them—ran this way a few steps and that way a few steps, all by-and-by. Not a man stood still except myself, and I soon got away, for the Japanese, frenzied with excitement, were bumping into me from all sides.

Presently the firemen came. They dashed in from all quarters of the city, dragging little hose carts painted red and flying white and red flags.

The hydrants in Yokohama are in manholes below the surface of the street. The firemen joined in the milling throng. They ran back and forth, and the spectators ran back and forth after them. There was much shouting and gesticulation. Every fireman, whether regular or volunteer, seemed to be a chief. They all gave orders that nobody obeyed, like a volunteer fire outfit in a country village at home.

There were ten or fifteen minutes of this running back and forth and shouting by the firemen; then some tiny streams of water began to sprinkle on the fire. Also, a few big engines began to squirt. Meantime the firemen were paying no attention to the houses on fire, but were trying to keep other houses from burning. A few of them tore slates from adjacent roofs and cast them indiscriminately into the crowd. Women with bundles of household belongings struggled out of the houses that might catch fire. More thousands came. For four blocks each way the streets were packed from wall to wall with excited people, all running back and forth and all shouting.

I had to club my coolie with my cane to make him start with me to the station, and he looked backward over his shoulder all the way. I was depriving him of a real pleasure—taking something out of his life by not allowing him to stay and help put out that fire. It seems almost superfluous to say I missed my train or that the Jintokusha man, bowing and smiling, remarked, "I am sorry for you!" However, that made me later in getting back that night, and as I went up dark and deserted Water street in Yokohama I heard music ahead of me—a kind of music and tune that sounded familiar.

Presently I overtook the musician. He was a Japanese youth, stumping along on his wooden clogs, wearing a derby hat and clad in a kimono, and he was playing on a mouth organ "Shall We Gather at the River?" Wherein was illustrated and exemplified the old and the new Japan.—Samuel G. Blythe in Saturday Evening Post.

Three Greatest Lawyers.
It would be rather difficult to pick out the "three greatest criminal lawyers" in the history of our country. Pinckney, O'Connor, Ingersoll, Prentiss, Choate and many others were very great criminal lawyers. Probably the three greatest criminal lawyers in our country's history were Burr, Prentiss and Brady.—New York American.

Dad's Bank.
"I see you keep a mite box—all the pennies and small coins for the helpless and improvident, I suppose?" "Exactly. My husband must have some place to which he can turn for car fares and luncheon money."—Philadelphia Ledger.

He shall win the upward race who takes the top his breathing place.

Buffalo.
Buffaloes are said to be the most obstinate of all wild animals in the matter of training.

Compromise.
"Might doesn't make right." "No, but it most always makes good."—Exchange.

THE ELITE MILLINERY AND HAIRDRESSING SHOP

272-274 FAIR STREET

Snappy Styles in Untrimmed Hats at $1.49---$5.98

These shapes are all guaranteed Silk Velvet and have been selected by us for exceptional style and fine make and finish, and if it were not for the fact that we can buy them wholesale, we should not be able to pass them over to you at the prices marked.

TRIMMED HATS AT $2.49 TO $10.00

A collection of Trimmed Hats that cannot be duplicated for the money anywhere in Kingston--the product of our own workroom and no two alike, copies of the imported model Hats. We very cordially invite inspection of these new models.

Mrs. Wilcox having left Kingston to locate elsewhere, Mrs. Elizabeth Wallis of 31 Green St. will manage above Hairdressing Parlor, where she will be pleased to meet all her friends, as well as our own patrons.

AN AFTERNOON WRAP.

A Charming Design in Faille Silk and Ball Buttons.

FOR EARLY AUTUMN.

This attractive material wrap is featured in black faille silk, but broadcloth or gabardine would be equally suitable. With adjustable belt, deep cuffs and roll collar, the coat is high necked and fastens with ball buttons, which also serve to trim the cuffs. If silk is preferred a lining will add to this garment's comfort.

A NEW SAILOR.

This Hat Shows How Even Sailors Have a Tendency to Climb.

Whatever is yet uncertain about the coming hat, its height is surely increasing. This good model, with a deep crown of silk, orange, has a velvet trim and a band of moire ribbon. Tinted in a soft shade by a novel satin ribbon. This hat is especially smart for the business woman.

Again Petticoats.

The smart petticoat for wear with sport skirts is of jersey silk in vivid stripes. These petticoats have a good drape at the ankle but at the hip they are attached to a smoothly fitting yoke, and the edge is finished simply with a deep hem, no ruffles or flounces break the smooth, trim line. For golf and all other out-of-door sports they are ideal, since their silk texture is so beautifully light and the drape at the foot prevents their coming about the time in motion. Tailored skirts call for more elaborate petticoats, and those of pussy willow tulle, with smart ruffles put on with cording, are the most distinctive sort. All petticoats measure two and a half to three yards at the edge now, and some of the more elaborate dancing petticoats of lace even to five and even six yards of width.

A Party Bag.

Have you ever gone to a party and faced the problem of where to put your handkerchiefs? Party dresses as a rule are not provided with pockets. A satchel is a dangerous hiding place for a handkerchief if one desires to keep the handkerchief. A pretty finish to such a costume, as well as a very capable finishing feature, is one of those tiny little bags, just large enough to hold a glove, handkerchief and vanity box. They are done in silk and tulle and satin and shirred on a ribbon which hangs on the wrist.

Cash and Credit.

"Father, what is meant by bank money?"
"Bankruptcy is when you put your money in your hip pocket and let your creditors take your coat." Filecandis Bletsky.

SCOTLAND LIGHTSHIP.

Origin of the Name of the Famous Beacon Off Sandy Hook.

Scotland lightship is so called because it marks the site of the wreck of the ship Scotland. According to an entry in the records of the United States coast guard at Washington, she was a British steamship of Liverpool, bound from Liverpool to New York. With a cargo of merchandise, she stranded near Sandy Hook on Dec. 2, 1860, and was a total loss. The acting commissioner of the bureau of light-houses supplies this excerpt from the records of the bureau:

"Under authority of the joint resolution of congress approved March 2, 1868, a light vessel was ordered on April 13, 1868, to mark temporarily the obstruction to navigation caused by the wreck of the steamship Scotland. The work of removing this wreck was completed in 1870, and the light-house board decided that it had no authority for retaining the light vessel at that point any longer without further congressional authority. This authority was given by an act of congress approved June 23, 1874, and light vessel No. 23 was accordingly placed on the station on Sept. 10, 1874, being relieved by light vessel No. 20 on Dec. 1, 1875. Light vessel No. 20 was continued on the station until 1889, when light vessel No. 7 took her place. Light vessel No. 7 was relieved on Dec. 2, 1902, by light vessel No. 11, which is still the regular station ship at this location.

"While the wreck of the steamship Scotland was an obstruction to navigation, the light vessel maintained to mark her position was known as the Wreck of Scotland light vessel. After the wreck had disappeared and another light vessel was placed there by an act of congress, not to mark the obstruction, but as an aid to navigators desiring to enter the port of New York, the light vessel was known as the Scotland light vessel, which name is still retained."—New York Sun.

BAGGING A BEAR.

Doing It, Too, In a Care Free, Nonchalant Sort of a Way.

An interesting story was told to me by a trapper to whom I had given shelter at my campfire on Kootenay lake. He said that he had just been up in the Selkirk's guiding a man named Roosevelt, who wanted to get a cinnamon or silver tip grizzly. I have forgotten which that they had got one and that he had just said goodbye to his employer, then police commissioner in New York. He said:

"That man Roosevelt is the bravest man I ever saw. He is very nearsighted and has a pocketful of different kinds of glasses. We were going up a narrow trail in the grizzly country when I saw around the turn, not very far ahead, a big bear shuffling down. I dropped back and motioned to Roosevelt to look around the corner. He stepped slightly forward and saw the bear not over a couple of hundred feet away.

"The trail was narrow, on one side a cliff, on the other a ravine. Instead of putting up his gun immediately and shooting, Roosevelt groped around in his pocket until he found the pair of glasses that he wanted, unhurriedly removed the pair he wore, rubbed, put on and adjusted the others and when the bear got within fifty feet of him took deliberate aim and killed him."

In picturesque language the old guide said that any son of a gun who would take the time to change his glasses when a grizzly was lopeing down the trail within a few yards of him was the bravest man he had ever seen.—Albert R. Ledoux in Mining and Scientific Press.

Why a Chinaman Laughed.

In the European quarter of Shanghai they were putting in a macadam road. The street was torn up and barricaded in the usual way. A sign about one foot high by two feet long bore this inscription: "Look Out For the Steam Roller." My Chinese companion, a leading merchant, burst into a loud laugh when he saw the notice and, pointing to it with one hand and the noisy, rattling steam roller with the other, said: "If a man can't see that volcanic mountain of evil and steam roller low in the world can he see a little sign?" And then he added retrospectively, "You foreigners have such peculiar ways." W. L. Anglin laugh in Leslie's.

The Nicotine Water Habit.

The habit, like the habit of Turkish water pipe, is always being smoked by Chinese women, partly because they like it, but mainly to suppress the men with the water. This habit, like the habit of smoking, is in fact, a late form of tobacco chewing. A mouthful of the paste is held in the mouth as long as possible. The paste is about 70% of it and cinch

The Polonzo Arrow.
"An arrow studded with the most costly of stones, tipped at both ends with pure virgin gold and headed with the feathers of the rarest birds." Such is the description given of the "Polonzo arrow," which in 1434 was presented to Sir John Dalsout by a Spanish gentleman. This wonderful arrow was made in 1294 by an ancestor of the Spaniards, and every stone and jewel with which it was set was said to represent a human life cut short through its instrumentality. The stones indicated the number of men to whom it had carried death, while the curiously fashioned gold and silver jewels represented the women who had fallen under its poisoned point.

Educating Jurymen In Law.

Not often does a judge turn a jurymen out of his box—to the jurymen's content, one may suspect. The relations are generally very cordial. Some time ago, when a jurymen asked a question which settled a case, Mr. Justice Backwell wrote to congratulate him, and said that a man who has served his country on a jury became a more useful citizen. The great Lord Mansfield, who had implicit faith in trial by jury, took such pains to educate them in commercial law at the Guildhall that for some time there was a body of gentlemen in the city known as "Lord Mansfield's Jurymen."—London Chronicle.

The Duke of Wellington wanted a certain piece of work done and instructed an officer of the Royal Engineers to do it. After examination the officer told the duke it was impossible. The duke sent for another officer, a much younger man and attached to another division of the army. This officer did what the duke required.

The next morning there appeared in the "orders of the day" the following epigrammatic note: "He who in was fails to do what he undertakes may always plead accident, which invariably attends military affairs, but he who declares a thing to be impossible which is subsequently accomplished registers his own incapacity."

The origin of the Tricolor. The French tricolor, which has been traced by ingenious antiquaries to so many different sources, is really derived from the dress of the "Trinitarians," a religious order founded specially for the purpose of redeeming from slavery those Christians who had been captured by Moors, Turks or other "infidels." They held large endowments in Rome and formerly owned part of the present gardens of New College at Oxford. It was the close association of these Trinitarians with "liberty" that led Lafayette at the revolution to adopt their habit of red, white and blue for the new flag of France. —Westminster Gazette.

THE FLATBOATMEN

A True Story of the Ohio Valley in the Eighteenth Century.

By DWIGHT MORWOOD

The boys of the first half of the nineteenth century read Indian stories of what may now be called the easterly west. The main avenue to the conquest of this same region, later called the middle west, was through the Ohio valley and the tributaries of that stream. The stories these boys read were not the fictitious tales their children or grandchildren perused in the latter part of the same century of the red man of the "plains" or the Rocky mountains, but real happenings to pioneers passing down "La belle riviere," as the early French settlers called the Ohio river, to open up what became Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and other territory in that region.

As soon as the Revolutionary War ended the tide of emigration to these states commenced. From Pittsburgh to its confluence with the Mississippi the Ohio was dotted with the flatboats of the period.

Hostile Indians infested the Ohio valley and were fertile in stratagem, as all red men have always been. When they took prisoners they would compel them to act as decoys to emigrants on the flatboats. There were also renegade whites who served the same purpose. These whites would hail a flatboat and beg the emigrants to take them aboard, saying that they had been captured by Indians and escaped. As soon as the boat came into the backwaters on the shore, where it could only with difficulty be brought again into the current, it would be attacked by Indians who had been concealed on the shore. In time this stratagem became known to the whites, and they would refuse to listen to the decoy's pleading. Yet there were times when the pleader was sincere and was denied rescue.

Other devices were resorted to by the Indians to lure the flatboatmen to the shore that they might be murdered and plundered. Game was plentiful in the forests, and the red men would imitate the sounds made by animals or birds. The wild turkey, which was obtainable in America till the middle or latter part of the nineteenth century, was a coveted meat by these pioneers, and often when the gobbles were heard the boat would be steered to shore and a hunting party sent for the birds.

In 1788 Henry Crist and Solomon Spears, engaged in obtaining salt from the Kentucky licks, with a party of thirteen whites, including one woman, left Louisville and floated down the Ohio till they reached the mouth of Salt river, where they were ambushed by the Indians. Scouts were sent ashore on the near bank of Salt river while the boat moved slowly onward. On the morning of the second day of this ascent the boat was landed and preparations were made for breakfast. The gobbling of the wild turkey was heard in the woods, and two of the crew went ashore with their guns to secure a bird or two for the meal.

Now, these persons had seen indications of the presence of Indians and knew that the gobbling of the turkey was a common decoy with them. But not stopping to deliberate they fell into the trap. Scarcely had they reached the shore when more than a hundred Indians sprang forward.

Whoever has seen an Indian painted for war, his features made savage by the colored lines drawn upon them, can imagine the terror inspired by the attack. Few persons now living have seen this sight, but those who have cannot understand how white men during the early history of America could take their wives and little children, too, to make homes in a country where they were liable at any moment to be murdered.

Of the flatboat party two were on shore, the rest still on the boat, which had been fastened to a tree by means of a chain that had been carried around the trunk and a hook on the end inserted in a link. The object of the Indians being to secure the emigrants, the boat and its cargo, they made a furious attack upon the whole party. Every man sprang to his gun, and since in all there were a dozen guns the Indians, who never wasted life in their encounters if they could help it, retired behind the trees on the bank.

Then commenced a steady fire on the boat. The Indians were protected by the trees, and the return fire from the whites availed little or nothing. Besides the advantage of hiding behind trees, the savages were on higher ground. Now one and now another of the pioneers fell, but such was the necessity for every man to stand by his rifle that the killed were not heeded and the wounded were left to take care of themselves.

Unfortunately for the whites the boat lay with its bow to the shore, and the salt kettles had been placed along the sides, leaving an open space through which the Indians sent a destructive fire. The water underneath the boat was deep enough to float her, and it was desirable to disengage the boat from the shore, in which event she would float out into the current and beyond the reach of the Indians' bullets. But if any one went ashore to unhook the chain he would be dropped immediately.

Meanwhile the Indians were picking off the men one by one. Every time they dropped a man there arose a hideous yell that, with the loss of their companion and the prospect of death for themselves, froze the blood in the pioneers' veins. Efforts would have been made to turn the boat so that they would get the protection of the salt kettles, but any man who attempted to use an oar for the purpose must stand up to be shot down.

Solomon Spears and several others were killed, and it looked as if the whole party would fall before the red men. A man named Fosset, one of the two who had gone ashore, had suffered a broken arm from a bullet, but had retreated to the boat. Not being able to hold a rifle, he busied himself by trying to loose the chain. Taking a pole, he lay low in the bow and endeavored to force the hook out of the link with the pole's end, but he only drove it inward. Finally with a short projection caused by the cutting of a branch from the pole he succeeded in removing the hook from the link.

What must have been the feelings of those who yet lived on the boat to see the chain unhooked from the tree and rattle down the bank into the water! Would the eddy have sufficient force to carry the boat out into the current? Would the chain retard her sufficiently to prevent her moving? One of the men sprang to an oar which he could work overhead without exposing himself to the enemy's fire and succeeded in working the boat out into the current. For the first time since the fight began an hour before those who lived could spare a moment to count the dead and wounded. Fire of the party were killed outright and four wounded. Solomon Spears was mortally wounded. He urged the survivors to pull the boat to the opposite side of the river and flee for their lives.

But the current carried them to a position farther downstream where they would again be within range of the Indians' rifles. Running down the bank, yelling as only savages could yell, they again attacked the whites. Two of the men who had been spared to fight, Crepps and Crist, each seizing a rifle, ascended the bank. The Indians fired a volley at them and fell back into a ravine, putting a bullet into Crepps' side and crushing Crist's heel. Another man who had followed the two into the fight returned to the boat and reported that he had left his companions on the shore powerless to get away.

Taking advantage of the retirement of the Indians, the few remaining aboard the boat pulled her again out into the middle of the river.

With the boat full of dead and wounded, with only one or two able to man the oars, the chance of escape was still small. But fortunately they were in the current, and the Indians, either satisfied with their work or not caring further to expose themselves, permitted them to drift away, and they reached a point of safety.

The settlers, having been roused by the story of the massacre, went at once to the scene of the final encounter to rescue the two men who had fallen. Crepps was found to be mortally wounded. He was brought away, but died during his removal. Crist's efforts to save himself were thrilling. Not being able to touch his wounded heel to the ground, he crawled into a thicket; but, realizing that the Indians would find him there, he took off his moccasins, bound them to his knees and started to crawl eight miles to a salt lick. For three days he had not tasted food. Weakened by hunger, suffering excruciating pain from his shattered heel, his progress was necessarily very slow, being not more than half a mile an hour.

One night it was the second after he commenced his tortoise journey—while lying near a trail he heard the sound of horses' hoofs. He called for help, whereupon the sounds were heard going away from him. This was naturally a bitter disappointment. Crist lay where he was, intending to resume his journey in the morning, hoping against hope that he would retain the strength to finish it.

The horseman who had passed, bearing a voice in the wood, either from fear of an enemy or superstition hurried on and, riding to a settlement, reported his experience. The settlers, realizing that some white man might be needing assistance, formed a posse and rode out to where the voice was heard. There they found Crist exhausted and brought him in.

The story of the woman of the party is given in a few words, and yet it must have been a long and harrowing one. She was carried to Canada and ransomed by a trader. In this sentence her story is summarized. What she suffered during that long journey of hundreds of miles and how her captors treated her are among the dread stories of that terrible period. "Taken to Canada and ransomed by a trader"—there is scarcely enough of it for an epitaph on a tombstone. And yet who knows but that in some old trunk, in a dingy garret, a yellow manuscript lies hidden which now and again through successive generations some descendant of that woman may take out, peruse and put back to be read later on by some other of her progeny?

If in the story of these flatboatmen we are impressed with their hardihood one other item arrests our attention. It is that twelve white men and one white woman defended themselves against 120 Indians for an hour, the enemy being above them on the bank and protected by trees, and that the whites succeeded in loosening their boat and pulling it out into the stream. Later these same Indians, or a large part of them, were put to flight by two white men.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, Sept. 24.—The September meeting of the local W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. George F. Andrews on Park street Wednesday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. E. A. Smiley, the vice-president, Mrs. Addison Stratton, was in charge. The meeting opened with the reading of Isa. 55th chapter, and this was followed by prayer by Mrs. W. W. Graham. The secretary, Mrs. Andrews, read the report of the very interesting and profitable meeting held at the home of Mrs. George F. Kelp in July. The report was accepted as read. A business session followed during which time work was planned for the coming year. The following ladies were appointed superintendents of the different departments: Press work, Mrs. Stratton; non-alcoholic medication, Mrs. Mary Dorman; mothers' meetings, Mrs. G. F. Kelp; red-letter days and socials, Mrs. John R. DeVany; temperance literature, Mrs. W. W. Graham; Sunday school work, Mrs. V. T. Wright; Sabbath observance, Mrs. Ira Schoonmaker; flower mission, Mrs. W. C. McNally; mercy, Mrs. Charles H. VanKirk. It was decided to observe the state day for prayer in January, and a special meeting held on that occasion. A committee was appointed to request the clerk of the village trustees to bring the matter of placing the iron watering tub that was placed by the W. C. T. U. a number of years ago, on Main street, now removed to some other place in the near vicinity, before the trustees at their next meeting. The meeting then adjourned to meet with Mrs. W. W. Graham on Wednesday, October the 13th. At that meeting the report of the County Institute held at Marlborough will be given. The hostess served refreshments which was coupled with a pleasant social hour.

COALING WARSHIPS AT SEA.

Sixty Tons of Fuel an Hour Whirled From Vessel to Vessel.

How the British vessels of war are coaled while sailing through heavy seas at a rate of twelve miles an hour without hindering their activities in any way is told in the Manchester Guardian.

A collier packed to the hatches with coal gets into touch by wireless with a battleship whose bunkers need to be replenished. On sighting the vessel the supply ship maneuvers until it is within 400 feet of the battleship. The collier then dispatches a small boat that carries two cables. One end of each is attached to the masthead of the supply vessel. The lines pay out as the boat advances, and when it reaches the warship the sailors fasten the cables to the stern of the ship on the port and starboard sides.

The two ships therefore travel in a straight line fastened together, while from the mast of the collier to the deck of the warship stretches a transport cable for carrying coal bags.

Sacks of coal that weigh a ton are hoisted from the top of the collier's mast to a platform at its head, below which there is a net to protect deck hands from falling pieces of coal. By means of wheels that run on the cable automatic winches force the load along the sloping transport line at a rate of 3,000 feet a minute. On reaching the deck of the battleship the load is automatically released and the transporter starts on its return journey.

By means of this apparatus sixty tons of coal can be carried every hour across the gap of water that separates the supply ship from the battleship. The great advantage is that both vessels can move at the rate of twelve knots an hour while the coaling goes on.

CURIOUS PENALTIES.

Some That Were Inflicted in the Early Days in New York.

When New York, or as it was then called, New Amsterdam, was under Dutch rule, some peculiar penalties were enacted. In 1642 a defendant in an action for slander was sentenced to throw something in the box for the poor. In 1644 Thomas Cornel, a soldier, was tried for desertion and sentenced "to be conveyed to the place of execution, and there fastened to a stake and a ball fired over his head, as an example to other evildoers."

In 1647 Jonas Jonassen, a soldier, for robbing hen roosts and killing a pig was ordered "to ride a wooden horse three days, from 2 p. m. to the conclusion of the parade, with a fifty pound weight tied to each foot." In 1648 an Englishman found guilty of a grave offense was pardoned on condition that he saw firewood for one year for the West India company.

In the time of the commonwealth in England, drunkards at Newcastle-on-Tyne were sentenced to carry about a tub, with holes in the sides for the arms to pass through. In 1754, in Scotland, David Leyce for striking his father, was compelled to appear before the congregation at church, "barbeddit and balfutit," with a paper above his head inscribed with large letters, "Be hold the man that has committed the putting hand on his father, and dishonoring God in him."—Exchange.

Backing Him Out.

Sir Herbert Tree's wit is well known among his friends, and they tell some very good stories about his funny remarks at rehearsals.

Once during the rehearsal of a certain play Sir Herbert asked a very young and by no means brilliant actor who fancied himself greatly to "step back a little." The actor did so and Tree went on rehearsing. A little later the famous manager repeated his request, and the youth obeyed again.

Shortly afterward Tree once more asked him to "step a little farther back."

"But if I do," complained the youthful one ruefully, "I shall be completely out of the stage."

"Yes," answered Tree quietly, "that's right!"—London Globe.

NOTED ACTOR AND OPERA SINGER REPORTED ENGAGED.

Lou Tellegen and Geraldine Farrar.

New York, Sept. 24.—In the theatrical district current rumors report the engagement of Lou Tellegen, the noted Greek-Dutch-French dramatic star and Geraldine Farrar, famous opera singer. Mr. Tellegen, who came to this country three years ago as the leading man for Sarah Bernhardt, and has since been starring in English plays, met Miss Farrar in California this summer, where both were working in moving picture studios.

Mr. Tellegen is one of the youngest stars on the stage, having recently passed his 30th birthday. If his report of his engagement is true it will be the second time he has ventured in matrimony. He was married at the age of nineteen but shortly thereafter was divorced. He was born in Holland, the son of a Greek army officer and a Dutch danseuse. His real name is Tellegouhos. His early education was received in Holland and Germany, but he later went to the famous Paris Conservatoire, where he received the highest awards in acting and was selected by Mme. Bernhardt as her leading man.

Miss Farrar is an American girl but has appeared in all the opera centers of the world. Her favorite and best known role is Carmen.

FRENCH SHARPSHOOTER IN AN ADVANCED TRENCH.

The picture shows a French sharpshooter in an advanced trench just 20 feet from the German trenches in the Souchez district. Note the respirator and respirator which this man is wearing as a protection against the use of poisonous gases by the Germans in this district. All French outposts are provided with these respirators and wear them constantly.

COMMON BLESSINGS

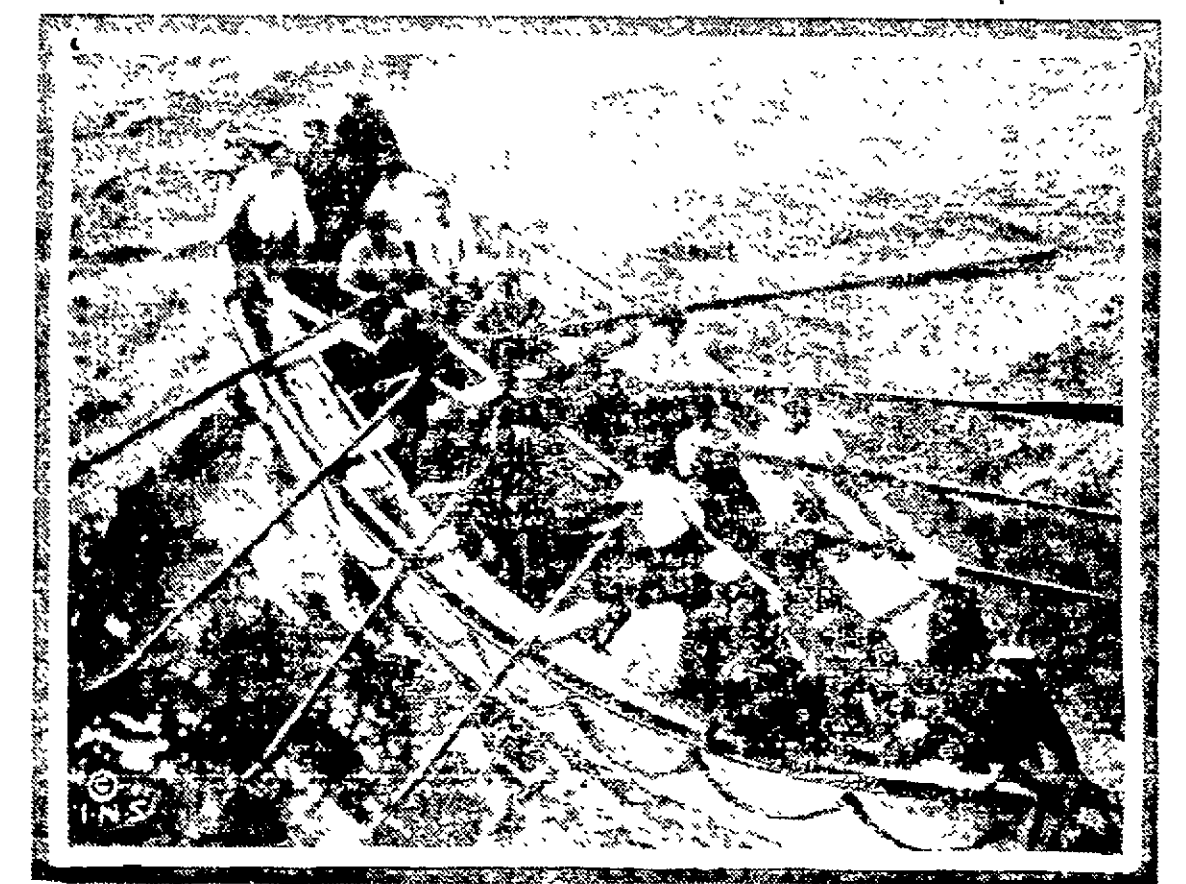

It is not rare gifts that make men happy. It is the common and simple and universal gifts: it is health and the glance of sunshine in the morning; it is fresh air; it is the friend, the lover; it is the landiness that meets us on the journey. It may be only a word, a smile, a look, it is these and not any rarity of blessing that are God's gentle art of making happy.—Morrison.

New Type of Prudigal.

"The people in his home town said he never could or would amount to anything."

"And now he's rich. I presume he went back and paid off the mortgage on the home place or something of that sort."

"No. The old home place wasn't mortgaged. He went back and demoralized his soul with treats by giving them a high power automobile. Now they are the worst speeders in town.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

SURVIVORS OF THE DOOMED ATHINA PULLING AWAY FROM DOOMED SHIP.

The picture shows one of the life boats of the Greek liner Athina, which was burned in mid ocean, leaving the doomed ship with the last of the survivors who were taken aboard the S. S. Tuscania and brought to New York. Of the 408 passengers and crew only one was lost, that one person having died from heart failure after being taken aboard the Tuscania.

It is believed that the fire was caused by incendiary bombs placed by German sympathizers.

He Let It Go.

Faultfinder in front of dairy restaurant—I notice the word dairy on your new sign is spelled d-i-a-r-y. Proprietor—I know it is. I was going to have it changed, but the painter convinced me his way of spelling the word was more suggestive. Faultfinder—More suggestive? Proprietor—Yes; he said it conveyed the idea of putting things down.—Judge.

Our Shrinking Earth.

Professor Rollin D. Salisbury of the University of Chicago says a continuous process of contraction is going on inside the earth and will continue until all the chemicals within it have been transformed into the densest compounds, millions of years hence. Earthquakes are a result of the contracting process.

Old Plot, New Scenery

Predicament of a Man Who Was Robbed of His Clothes

By MAURICE BROWN PHIPPS
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

The newly risen moon was flooding the steep path when Stotesworthy St. John turned his back upon the radiant scene and wheeledly stumbled up the hillside.

He had been down to the point overlooking the bay to see the moon rise, not because he cared particularly for moonrises or sunsets or for any of the daily recurring phenomena of nature, but because he considered it the proper thing for the perpetrator of a best seller to do.

At all events, the other guests of Cragside Hall seemed to expect it of him and he was nothing if not polite. When one is forty-five, both in years and waist measure, somewhat asthmatic and has to be careful about exposing a thinly thatched cranium to the evening air, one does not linger long over romantic memories aroused by the silvery orb of night.

Suddenly he became conscious of the close proximity of something about which he had many times glibly written, but with which he was entirely unfamiliar—namely and to wit, a hard, glistening object, one end of which had seemed to Stotesworthy, before it was pressed firmly against his abdomen, to resemble somewhat the entrance to the Mammoth cave.

"Come across, cull," said the unprepossessing person, a total stranger to Stotesworthy, who appeared to be fastened to the other end of the Mammoth cave affair, "come across and don't waste no time, I'm hungry."

Stotesworthy St. John opened his mouth and then closed it again. In rapid succession he swallowed several times.

"Come along, hurry up," he said, exerting a little more pressure on the rear of Mammoth cave, "dig up your wad. My fingers is gettin' cold, and I'm liable to pull this trigger and bore a little round hole right straight through your little round stummock like up."

"I—I have no money with me," Stotesworthy at last managed to falter. "I was playing golf this afternoon, and when I changed my clothes I forgot."

"I don't give a cuss about your social engagements," rudely interrupted the coarse person. "What I'm after is some coin. Now, produce."

"But I tell you I have none," the author persisted.

After convincing him that the little fingers, which, by the way, he had seen at all affected by a cold, that Stotesworthy's was a most accurate, the intruder spoke just one word:

"Strip!"

"What?" Stotesworthy gasped. "Why, I—why?"

"Strip!" the other repeated firmly. "And hurry up about it. You don't think I'm goin' to have a holdup chinked up agin me and get nothin' out of it, do you? Them clothes is good for a plate o' beans, I guess."

Slowly and shiveringly Stotesworthy began an undressing act that would not have been tolerated upon any stage in the country.

Coat, waistcoat, trousers, shirt, collar, tie and hat lay in a neatly arranged heap at his feet, and clothed in righteous indignation and very little else he awaited the further command of the pitiless highwayman.

"You can keep them kicks," he said contemptuously, indicating Stotesworthy's custom made pumps. "They ain't no good to me, and this hard ground might hurt your little toesies."

"Thank you," Stotesworthy dumbly replied.

Stotesworthy gently ground his teeth in hapless rage. And then the coarse one, after gathering up his new acquaintance's donation to the poor, did a most singular thing.

He hurried the hard, shining implement, one end of which had seemed to Stotesworthy as the entrance to Mammoth cave, against a large boulder by the side of the path.

It shattered into a thousand tinkling pieces.

Stotesworthy St. John had been held up, robbed, divested of his clothing and his self respect by the menacing muzzle of an empty whisky flask.

For many minutes after the robber's last brutal laugh had floated back to him on the evening breeze, Stotesworthy remained motionless, an unheroic statue of humiliation and chagrin.

Stotesworthy calculated that it was about 8 o'clock; the hotel was fully half a mile away, and a few yards beyond him, where the path debouched from the shadow of the fir and spruces, the road was made dazzling by the shimmering moonlight. He was in something of a predicament.

To remain where he was meant to court death in the unpleasant form of pneumonia. To make a dash for it meant death in a far more unpleasant guise of ridicule.

To slip in unnoticed was practically impossible, especially as he had not the slightest acquaintance with the rear of the hotel where an entrance must be effected.

The sound of nearby feminine laughter startled the humiliated author into activity, and he scuttled into the nearest thicket like a frightened rabbit. From this cleft of vantage he cautiously peered out.

The laughter had emanated from a group of persons who were walking along the road leading to the hotel. But what a peculiar assortment of clothes.

One was arrayed in the costume of colonial days, sword and all; another had apparently deserted the round-up without discarding the sheepskin chaps and sombrero before coming to town; several were hidden in the voluminous folds of nightgown affairs of various colors, and all wore masks.

Stotesworthy gazed in fascinated amazement. There were other ridiculous costumes than his own abroad that evening, and for a moment he felt a little easier. And then a light dawned upon him, and he groaned aloud.

The last dance of the season—the masquerade!

That's what it was. He had forgotten all about it. And it would be 2 o'clock in the morning before the fools would think of such a thing as sleep; hence the groan.

Silently and stealthily, though not quite so inconspicuous as an Indian stalking his quarry, Stotesworthy St. John alternately crept and dashed toward the unsuspecting Cragside Hall.

He took advantage of every bush and boulder in a manner that would have been a credit to a boy scout, and at last he paused for breath in the very shadow of the hotel.

Cautiously he peered around the corner and found that he was looking into what was unmistakably the clothes drying yard of the establishment.

A sudden inspiration descended upon the author, and not stopping to consider the effect his sudden appearance might have upon the laundress, he made a dash for the first sheet which met his eye.

As luck would have it the maid's back was turned, and she did not see Stotesworthy until, with his rotund form partially hidden by the damp sheet, he passed her on the way to an open door which, he had shrewdly guessed, opened into the laundry.

"Oh, heavens!" he heard her whimper as she sank upon the pile of linen in the basket at her feet and hid her face in her hands. "I see it again! Somebody's goin' to die, I know!"

By sheer luck, Stotesworthy, stumbling blindly about in the darkness of the hotel basement, came across a stairway unused since the addition to Cragside Hall was built two seasons before.

He mounted to the door at the top and cautiously turned the handle, it was unlocked. He opened the door a crack and peered into a small apartment which he did not remember of ever having seen.

A young man, whom Stotesworthy recognized as one familiarly called Tommy by the younger feminine guests of the hotel, was the only person within his range of vision.

King Solomon in all his glory was never arrayed like Tommy. A dandy of the court of Louis XV., or probably Louis himself, he appeared to be as he stood by an open window anachronistically inhaling an Egyptian cigarette.

It was a wonder that Stotesworthy recognized him at all, notwithstanding he had laid aside his mask, so bearded and beffed was he.

"Psst!" Stotesworthy hissed. "Psst, Tommy."

Tommy turned and stared curiously at the door whence the sound seemed to come.

"What is it?" he asked. "What do you want?"

"Are you alone?" came in a guarded whisper. "What room is this, anyway?"

"Yes, I'm alone," Tommy answered. "This is a sort of cloak or ante-room; used to be the old office, I guess. It opens into the ballroom. What's up?"

"Can I get upstairs from here?" Stotesworthy inquired in the same hoarse whisper. "Get me upstairs without any one seeing me?"

"I don't know," the courier of Louis XV. replied. "No, I don't believe you can. Why?"

"This is why," Stotesworthy exclaimed tragically and stepped into the room.

"What—oh, you're lost your mask. Is that it?" Tommy replied.

"Gee!" he burst forth as he took in the author's fantastic costume. "What are you, rigged up to represent, anyhow—a Roman senator?"

Stotesworthy did not answer. He was struck with another idea. "Ha—yes, yes," he said at last. "A Roman senator, and I've lost my mask!"

"I'll see if I can find another for you," Tommy, unnecessarily agreeable, volunteered.

"No, no, wait!" Stotesworthy exclaimed. "I don't want a mask. You see if there is any possible way I can get out of here without any one seeing me."

Tommy nodded and turned once more to the door opening into a passage that led to the lobby, adjusting his mask as he went.

The door had scarcely closed behind Tommy before it opened again, and his gallant figure reappeared.

"Some one's coming down the passage," he explained. "Thought you'd better get out of sight if you don't want to be recognized."

"Some one coming?" Stotesworthy gasped. "Who is it?"

"How do I know?" the courier of Louis XV. demanded. "They're all masked. Some women—Here, hide in this closet!"

Stotesworthy, hurrying as fast as the hobbled sheet would allow, squeezed himself through the doorway.

Unfortunately, the courier was far too interested in trying to establish the identity of the two masked women, who at that moment entered from the passage, to pay much attention to the unhappy Stotesworthy, and he did not notice that he was standing on a corner of the Roman senator's toga.

Neither did the Roman senator notice that anything was wrong until the final squeeze play which carried him through the narrow opening.

He had gone through with a sort of grace, when something came in the famous revolving wedge of the football field; this time, however, executed by a single player, something of a feat in itself.

But, as fate would have it, he had rotated in the wrong direction; had put a reverse English on himself, as it were, with the result that the sheet, or most of it, remained in the cloakroom.

Immediately upon Stotesworthy's disappearance Tommy took it upon himself to slam the door. Again fate, in the guise of a spring lock, played the trouble burdened author a scurvy trick.

The bang of the door was followed immediately by a vicious bombardment of knocks and kicks from Stotesworthy's side.

"Open this door!" he bellowed. "You—you—open this door, I say!"

"Sh-sh!" cautioned Tommy in a stage whisper. "Wait just a minute; they're still here."

"Open this door, I tell you. I don't care who's there," screamed the author, seemingly in a fury over something. "Open this door, you fool, or I'll break your confounded neck!"

"Oh, if that's the way you feel about it," Tommy returned, with maddening coolness, "you can stay in there till you calm down a bit."

The orchestra had ceased playing, and a curious hush had fallen upon the dancers, so that the courier of Louis XV. heard distinctly the ensuing outburst from the other side of the door.

"Open this door!" Stotesworthy shrieked in crescendo tones. "I'm in the ballroom!"

Even with that horrifying announcement Tommy failed to grasp the situation. He had not noticed Stotesworthy's toga upon which he was still standing, and even if he had that was no reason why he should know that a stout, asthmatic author was giving a free demonstration of athletic underwear in a crowded ballroom.

Tommy felt peevish. That was no way to talk to a courier of Louis XV., who was doing his best to assist. Let him get out by himself.

"Stay there, then," he called out and passed down the passage to the lobby.

The first train to New York left Baywater, the station used by the guests at Cragside Hall, at 5:30 in the morning.

It was not a popular train, nor a fast train, but it was the one elected by Stotesworthy St. John to carry him and his efforts away from the seaside.

For the past three years Mr. St. John's summers have been spent at Atlantic City, and he rarely leaves his hotel in the evening unaccompanied.

BURNING CITADEL AT BREST-LITOVSK.
When the Germans entered the Russian town of Brest-Litovsk after the Russian evacuation they found most of the town in flames. A lucky photographer secured this picture of the burning citadel, with the German troopers carrying out some of the booty, which consists mostly of bags of grain which had been stored there.

Punishment In Persia.

Among the Persians the usual mode of punishment is the bastinado from which men of the highest rank are not exempt. It is inflicted with very great severity frequently so as to render the sufferer almost a cripple for life. The victim is thrown upon his face, and each foot is passed through a loop of strong cord attached to a pole, which is raised horizontally by men, who, twisting it around, tighten the ropes and render the feet immovable. Two executioners then strike the soles alternately with switches of the pomegranate tree well steeped in water to render them supple. The punishment frequently lasts for an hour or until the unfortunate victim faints from pain.

Then Came the Storm.

"Why is it that the attendants in telephone offices are all women?" Mrs. Brown made this inquiry of her husband.

"Well," answered Mr. Brown, "the managers of the telephone office are aware that no class of attendants work so faithfully as those who are in love with their labor, and they knew that women would be fond of the work in telephone offices."

"What is the work in a telephone office?" Mrs. Brown further inquired.

"Talking," answered Mr. Brown. And that conversation came to an end and a different kind of conversation began.—Chicago Herald.

Throwing Men Overboard.

In ancient Scotland the barbarous custom existed which cost Jonathan much inconvenience. When a ship became unmanageable it was usual to cast lots for the purpose of discovering who was responsible for the trouble, and the man upon whom the lot fell was condemned. Instead of human beings dogs used sometimes to be thrown into the sea with their legs bound.

Golf In Scotland.

In ancient times, when Scotland always had work for her soldiers to do all young men were required to perfect themselves in archery. They preferred to play golf, and so serious a rival did the game become that it was for a time suppressed and made a capital offense. That curious law never has been repealed and may still be found on the statute book. There seems to be no record, however, of the law ever having been enforced.

RALPH DE PALMA.

FROM SHAVING FACES TO SHAVING TAIL.

New York, Sept. 23.—Ralph de Palma, one of the drivers entered in the Astor Cup race at the Sheephead Bay Motor Speedway on October 2, is one of the best known drivers in the country, but it is not generally known that he started life as a barber.

Ralph was born in Italy but came to this country when just a mere lad. For years he worked as a barber, and he was a good one, too.

However, his love of adventure soon led him away from the reclining chair, the lathe and the strop, and he entered the bicycle racing game when that sport was at its height. From that to the motor-cycle was but a short stride and then came his first auto race, being one of the old Fiat Cyclones.

In which Cedrino was killed. Ralph started out on a campaign of the dirt tracks and at one time held every record from the one mile to twenty-five.

He has had more accidents than any other living driver. His first spill was at Danbury, Conn., in the same Fiat Cyclone and his most memorable accident was at Milwaukee, a few years ago, when he bumped into the rear of Caleb Bragg's Fiat and landed in the ditch with the heavy Mercedes on top of him.

De Palma won the classic Vanderbilt Cup race twice and has four victories on the Elgin course to his credit. He also won the last 500 mile race at Indianapolis in a thrilling contest with Darfo Resta.

The Eskimo Code.

The Eskimo's social and moral code is interesting. Its chief provisions are: Should a man inadvertently or by accident kill another man, his wife and children of the man so killed remain a burden on the murderer so long as he or they live.

A drift log found is treasure trove and belongs to the finder, who indicates possession by placing upon it a pipe, mitten or personal trinket of some kind.

No one must eat seal and walrus on the same day.

All large animals killed are to be cooked upon as common property of the tribe and not as a personal belonging of the man who kills them.

Valuable Medical Advice.

An anxious inquirer writes to the medical department of a New York paper, "Would you kindly tell me if there is any cure for a bump?"

To whom the medical journalist replies: "You will get help from (1) walking pigeon feed, (2) walking sandals."

The doctor does not mention it, but a bad case of pigeon toes can be cured by walking bow-legged. The remedy for chronic bow-legs is to walk knock-kneed. Should knock-knees bring on pigeon toes again one can, of course, always escape back to bunions.

What would humanity do without the science of medicine as practiced in the newspapers?—Outlook.

PITCHFORK USED IN HIGGINSVILLE ROW

A Higginsville altercation in which a pitchfork figured as a weapon was staged in court today morning when the action brought by Martin Lane of Murphy street, near the Washington avenue viaduct, against his neighbor, Jesse Dunham, to recover $1,000 damages for assault was taken up for trial before Judge Jenkins and a jury. Frank W. Brooks represented Lane and Corporation Counsel W. D. Brinnier appeared for Dunham. The altercation occurred after supper on Tuesday, July 5, of this year.

Lane is a young man and is a gambler by trade, while Dunham is a man of 60 odd years and is a farmer and at the time was employed as the street department driver of a team. Both reside on Murphy street which is a short street running under the viaduct and parallel with the Niagara creek.

From the story as brought out at the trial Dunham was turning some weeds in a vacant lot adjoining the Lane home and Martin when he saw the smoke coming from the window went out and walking over to where Dunham stood asked, "What in are you trying to do, burn my house down?" Martin on the stand this morning said that after he had passed that remark on to Dunham that the latter came over toward him with the pitchfork in his hands, mumbled to himself, "I made a pass at him," said Martin, "and just as I did he jabbed me with the fork."

All women in the court room were requested to step outside the room while Martin showed the marks of the wounds to the jury. The fork had struck him in the groin and he was laid up for eight days and suffered about three weeks from the injuries received.

There is no dispute in regard to the fact that Martin first made "a pass" at Dunham, but there is a dispute as to whether the pass landed. Dunham claims that Martin "soaked" him in the eye and that he wore a pair of black eyes for a week. Martin claims that he was unable to swear whether he hit Dunham or not.

While Martin claims that Dunham jabbed him with the pitchfork, Dunham claims that after Martin had made the remarks in regard to burning down the house that Martin grasped him by the shoulder with one hand and punched him several times in the face with the other. Dunham said that when Martin grasped him and started punching him that he dropped the fork and took hold of Martin and threw him to the ground. Dunham said that he could not swear that he struck Martin with the fork. From Dunham's story it is evident that he thinks that Martin when he grasped him ran into the prongs of the fork which Dunham was holding, he says in his left hand.

Dunham also claimed that Martin was drunk and Martin, under cross examination, by Mr. Brinnier, said that on Sunday he had drank six bottles of beer and on Monday, when the glorious Fourth was celebrated, he had had but two small beers and he had the same amount of beer on the day of the argument with Dunham. Martin denied that he was drunk either the two days preceding the argument or the day on which it occurred.

The only witness of the affair was John Lane, who has the saloon near the viaduct in Higginsville and who is a brother of Martin.

According to John Lane's story of the affair he was standing in the vacant lot talking to Dunham when his brother came out of the house and walked into the field. He said that Martin made some remark about whether Dunham was trying to burn down the house and that he had no insurance on the furniture and then Martin made a pass at Dunham and then the two "buckled together." John said from where he stood that he could not say whether Martin had landed on Dunham or not. It was but a very brief space of time after Martin had made the pass that the two fell to the ground together with Dunham on top and Dunham had Martin by the throat. John advised Dunham not to hit Martin and he replied that he would not and that he would not let Martin hit him.

Edward Cunningham who runs the Carroll Hotel on Washington avenue near the viaduct, testified to seeing Martin sitting in Roach's doorway and that he dressed the wounds and telephoned for Dr. O'Leary.

In reply to questions by Mr. Brinnier Cunningham said he was a pretty good judge of when a man was drunk but he could not say whether Martin was drunk or not.

In reply to Mr. Brooks' questions Cunningham said that Dunham was a gambler when he was drunk and that Dunham's temper when drunk was a little out of the ordinary. He had seen Dunham have trouble with a man in his barroom.

"And you had served Dunham with whiskey that you not?" asked Mr. Brinnier.

"Yes."

And it was the whiskey that caused the trouble?"

"It might have been," replied Mr. Cunningham with a smile.

Martin to prove his side of the at-fair called but two witnesses beside himself, his brother and Mr. Cunningham.

Mr. Brinnier's motion to dismiss the complaint was denied and he called but one witness and that was Mr. Dunham who told his side of the argument.

The case was the shortest so far tried at this term of court and was taken up this morning and sent to the jury after noon. This afternoon the jury returned a verdict of no cause of action.

There being no cases ready for trial this afternoon all of the other jurors were excused until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Wants Judgment Reversed.

Oral arguments were heard by Judge Jenkins before the noon recess in the action of David Basch of this city against Joseph Zanelli of Fleischmanns. This is an appeal from Basch's court. Basch is represented by Henry Klein and William D. Brinnier, Jr., appeared for Zanelli. The action was brought for goods sold and delivered to Zanelli by Basch. The service was made on Zanelli at Fleischmanns in the town of Shardaken. When the case came up for trial before Justice Kennedy of the town of Clister he dismissed the case with costs on the grounds raised by Zanelli's attorney that the justice had no jurisdiction as Zanelli was a non-resident. The motion made this morning before Judge Jenkins by Mr. Klein is to reverse the decision of Judge Kennedy and award Basch judgment in the sum of $22.93.

Judge Jenkins reserved decision.

SUBMARINE SINKS HORSE TRANSPORT

Washington, Sept. 24.—The British transport Anglo-Columbian, loaded with horses, and bound from Montreal to Liverpool, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off Fastnet at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Consul Frost at Queens-town reported to the state department this afternoon that the steamer was pursued 78 miles by the submarine before she was finally overhauled and sent to the bottom.

There were six Americans in the crew. The consul reports that there were no casualties, and that the vessel was given ample warning. He says that the crew took to the boats and later were picked up.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Sabier, Mrs. Dudley and Mrs. Stearns went on an excursion to New York on Wednesday of this week.

Ephraim Markle is suffering with an attack of erysipelas.

Miss Marie Heffern sang a most beautiful selection in the Reformed Church on Sunday entitled, "The Gates of Paradise."

John MacNair left on Monday for New Brunswick. He has entered the freshman class at Rutgers College.

There was a large audience at the Reformed Church on Sunday, the Methodist and Episcopal ministers and congregations uniting with the Reformed congregation, as a token of respect to the late and faithful pastor of the Rev. William MacNair, who leaves this week for his new field of labor in New Jersey.

The Rev. James Cantine will occupy the pulpit of the Reformed Church on Sunday, September 26.

BULGARIA READY TO ENTER THE WAR OF GOODS RELEASED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Salonica, Sept. 24.—Bulgaria is now ready to plunge into the European war.

Crown Prince Boris, oldest son of King Ferdinand, has been put in command of an army numbering 233,000 men, supported by 1,080 guns.

The Bulgarian war office has selected General Zastoff to be chief of the general staff.

General Zastoff, who is at present the Bulgarian war minister, will be replaced in that office by General Gouditschev.

Operation against the Serbs will be carried out by General Boyadoff, present chief of the general staff, who is already on the Serbian frontier. In his command are five cavalry regiments which have just reached the frontier.

The Bulgarian infantry regiments on the Serb frontier have been reinforced by drafts from regiments in the interior.

Students at the national military academy of Bulgaria have been drafted into the regular army for active service.

A battalion of sappers are on their way from Sofia to Dubnitzka, on the Serbian frontier. A detachment of mounted artillery has just left Sofia, its destination being kept secret.

The 1916 class of Bulgarian reservists have been ordered to report to the recruiting bureaus before October 20.

The Varna branch of the Bulgarian national bank is sending its gold to Sofia.

All Bulgarian shipping on the Black Sea is preparing to take refuge in the big inlet at Varna.

$150,000,000 WORTH OF GOODS RELEASED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 24.—The British embassy this afternoon notified the foreign trade advisers of the state department that all arrangements now have been completed for the release to American importers of the $150,000,000 worth of goods of German and Austrian origin now in warehouses in Rotterdam. The embassy has been asked to reduce the agreement to writing, after which the state department will issue a formal notice to the American importers telling them just how they must proceed to get their goods through.

This agreement, which followed sharp unofficial representations both here and in London, is the first real concession made to American commerce by Great Britain. All of the goods to be released under the agreement announced this afternoon were purchased prior to March 1 of this year.

PLAN TO RELIEVE THE DARDANELLES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 24.—Nearly a million and a half men are expected to participate in the great drive of the central powers into Serbia with the aim of relieving the pressure against Turkey at the Dardanelles. The Germans, according to a dispatch from Nish, have massed 500,000 men on the Serbian front. Austria-Hungary probably will furnish 400,000 while the Bulgarian army, rapidly mobilizing, will add 250,000 more unless the allies succeed in the eleventh hour in their attempt to hold back King Ferdinand.

Today's advices from Bucharest indicate that Bulgaria is about to strike at her former ally, Serbia. One dispatch says:

"The situation is most critical. Requisitions of all kinds are being made by the Bulgarian war office. Bulgarian cavalry is massed on the Serbian front."

A report from Salonika that Bulgaria had cancelled its mobilization order was unconfirmed during the forenoon and was given little credit. The situation on the Galician and Italian fronts gave some measure of hope to the allies, however. The Austrians admit that their forces in Volynia have retired to the Styrr river, while on the Italian front the Austro-Hungarian troops have evacuated their positions on Monte Cistone. It is expected by British observers that these Austrian reverses are bound to have a deterring effect upon Bulgaria unless an irrevocable decision has already been reached by that nation.

GERMAN WAR LOAN OVER-SUBSCRIBED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Sept. 24.—(By wireless).—Germany's third war loan has been over-subscribed by more than $507,000,000. The following official statement was issued today:

"The war loan is an immense success. The subscriptions amount to 12,300,000,000 marks ($3,007,500,000). Reports of subscriptions are still awaited from some parts of the empire."

The amount sought was 10,000,000 marks or $2,500,000,000.

STEEPLEJACK JIM IS ON THE JOB

"Steeplejack," Jim Parker is painting the stack of the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company on East Strand. This stack is 150 feet high. He is also engaged on the stacks at Weston's laundry on Broadway and will do three for the Kingston Electric Company both inside and outside. Parker painted the big clock on the Colgate building at Jersey City, said to be the largest in the world. The steeplejack is stopping at the United States Hotel. In his career as a lofty climber he has met with several accidents but the most serious was recently when he fell and broke his back.

Miss Mary J. DeWitt, a trained nurse, who underwent a serious operation at the Wauna Sanitarium, is doing as well as can be expected, at the home of Mrs. D. D. Forbes on Clinton avenue.

Mr. Gray's Autobus Line.

William B. Gray, a well known engineer who has a number of friends in this city and vicinity, is engaged in the operation of a new bus line which will afford transportation to points not reached by the New Rochelle trolleys. The company will be known as the New Rochelle Autobus Company, and Mr. Gray is its president. He has been in the city for a number of years with Stewart, Kerbaugh & Shanley and has served as American representative of Pearson & Son, the English contractors. He has been an expert witness in a number of cases, including the Yale quarry case. The New Rochelle Star says he is an expert on high explosives and submarine mining.

Coal Schooner Sinks.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Hyannis, Mass., Sept. 24.—The three-masted schooner Minnie Slauson, out of New York for St. John with coal, sank today off Hyannis after a collision with the Handkerchief Lightship. Captain E. B. Dixon and the crew took to the boats and landed safely here.

Woman's Enlarging Sphere.

At twenty-five a man used to begin to live, but a woman was on the shelf. Up to a few decades ago the woman of twenty-five, married or single, was usually a passive. If married she forswore romance and spent her days in dull and commendable faithfulness to "kinder, kirche, kueche." If unmarried and minus an independent income, heaven help her! She passed gently into the maiden aunt stage—household helper in general to any married sister, brother, cousin that ever wanted her; subject to call when there was illness, dire need, a new baby or bustling preparations for some important event; to take errors and omissions meekly and without complaint. Sometimes she persisted in being young even at twenty-seven and curled her hair and squeaked her voice to a childish treble and trained in a set of kittenish manners for social purposes. She hated to give up the thought of ever being married.

And here's her twentieth century substitute who is an undeveloped child under twenty-five. She is perfectly willing to marry, but she has plenty of interests to occupy her if she doesn't. Moreover, she has plenty of interests in addition to home and family when she does marry.

For there is one thing that business and professional interests have done for the modern woman which makes them beyond price—that have protracted youth and deferred recognition of old age indefinitely. Business and professional life do for women what they have done for men. It takes a man about ten years to put a business on the level of substantial success. Sometimes it takes more, occasionally less. The well planned business life of the average man makes the years between twenty and thirty hard plugging. At thirty he begins to have a secure footing, and if he has really lived, if he has the rich human experience that falls to the average normal individual, he is a well rounded personality and in the prime of life at forty.

Interesting occupation has shoved ahead woman's prime of life similarly. The young bud of nineteen or twenty is only pleasant to look at or to play with for a little while. From twenty to thirty, if she is actively engaged in doing something worth while, she is developing continually. She is enriching her mind and personality by actual contact with life, more real than that gleaned from the safe walls of a comfortable home. She is building her business life, facing conflict daily, learning self reliance. Her soul goes unshielded through the fires of experience. At thirty she is in the prime of life, rich in interest and human sympathy and understanding. For it is not alone the patting of baby curls that develops womanly sympathy, but working in the world and seeing and experiencing what other men and women endure.

Woman's life used to be mainly retrospective. Before thirty she was already engaged in the gentle occupation of reiterating again and again her youthful experiences and conquests. The modern woman with an occupation looks ahead. The past is to her only a foundation, and her days are filled with planning for next month, next year and ten years ahead.

Sandwiches and Sandwich Fillings.

Honey Sandwich.—Spread thin slices of bread with very thick honey that will not run readily; spread other side with butter stirred with cream. Press one slice of each together and cut into fancy shapes if something tasty is desired for an afternoon tea.

Baked Bean Sandwich.—Reduce the beans to a pulp (red kidney beans preferred). Mix pulp with melted butter, onion juice, a pinch of dry mustard, a few olives or pimientos chopped and a dash of tomato ketchup or chili sauce. Spread the mixture between slices of brown bread. Chili sauce is generally used.

Deviled Ham Sandwiches.—To make deviled ham chop very fine one pint of boiled ham (more fat than lean), six hard boiled eggs, one teaspoonful of mustard (the made kind), season and press in a mold. This will keep for weeks and is a good filling for sandwiches.

Fillings for sandwiches are numerous and nearly always on hand. First there come the sweet fillings, such as creamy fudges of all kinds, mashed chocolate creams, maple fillings, creamy purple fudge, caramel fudge, candied ginger as a garnish for outside of sandwiches, also as a filling; raisins chopped and mixed with fudge or chopped and mixed with butter, etc. They make a good filling. They do not attract digestion quite so harshly when used in this manner and may be used between crackers, cookies or bread with good results and are always liked by those who use them. Second come the cheese fillings, American cheese and Swiss cheese, and they may be cut wafer thin and served in many ways with pimientos on buttered bread. Nuts and raisins are popular now as sandwich fillings, as are also the meat, chicken and vegetable fillings.

Darning Hint.

When darning run the thread around the hole first, drawing the hole up until the edges lie flat on the darning. The hole will seem much smaller, and the darn can be made more satisfactorily.

Arguments.

You may imagine the fellow who was arguing with you quit because he was beaten, but there is always the probability that he thought it would be useless to waste any more words on a fool.—Toledo Blade.

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny earned.—Benjamin Franklin.

Did you ever stop to think that good care of the toothbrush is almost as essential as good care of the teeth? Yet how few persons really take the proper care of either! Nothing spoils a pretty face so quickly as bad teeth, and the girl who has any regard for her appearance will watch both her brush and her teeth.

It never pays to invest in a cheap toothbrush. In the first place a bad set of bristles leave their work half done. They have not the necessary stiffness and resistance to clean the teeth well. Then the bristles in a cheap brush are not well fastened and are apt to fall out. This makes a cheap toothbrush a real menace, for if the bristles come loose in the mouth they are apt to slip down the throat, catch there and decay, or they may pierce through the walls of the digestive tract.

Buy a good brush and then take care of it. Before you use a brush for the first time soak it in a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda for two hours. This not only serves to disinfect it from shop handling, but it sets the bristles so that they will not fall out so readily.

It is better not to use a toothbrush for a longer period than three weeks at a time, and it is wiser to keep two brushes going at once. In this way one can be drying out and airing while the other is in use. Be sure that the brush is well rinsed and thoroughly clean of all tooth paste or dirt before hanging it up to dry. Once a week let it boil in clear hot water for about five minutes to kill any germs which may be lingering in the bristles and to disinfect it well.

The teeth should be brushed after each meal, before retiring and upon arising in the morning. The nightly cleansing, so often neglected, is in reality the most important of all. It is essential to brush the teeth both inside and out before retiring, so that the food particles will not stay in the crevices and decay overnight. Once a day or twice at the most is often enough to use tooth paste or powder. At other times wash the teeth with clear water.

Very often after a long illness it will be found that the teeth have begun to decay. This is usually laid down to the nature of the illness. In reality it is more often due to neglect of the teeth than to the ailment itself. During illness the teeth should be cleaned often, especially as they cannot be attended to by a Coccofent.

The best tooth wash, one which will help to keep the gums and teeth away tartar, can be made by dissolving a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda (ordinary baking soda) in a pint of water. Bottle this and keep it on hand for use. It is quite as good a cleanser as peroxide, and it is not so hard on the teeth. The peroxide is said to wear the enamel away.

The Care of Foodstuffs.

As soon as meat or fish arrives from the market it should be examined in the folds and crevices to make sure there are no eggs left by intruding flies. A wire safe in the cellar is the best place to hang meat. In mutton or in lamb the marrow or soft fatty substance should be taken from the backbone, as also the thin membrane which appears under steaks and chops, as these decay quickly and, therefore, are liable to taint the whole piece. Never leave meat in paper, but put at once on a clean plate if it is not hung. Fish should not be laid directly on artificial ice, as the ammonia used is apt to combine with the fish and cause ptomaine poisoning. Do not cover meat or fish tightly before being cooked and never cover cooked food such as soups, meats and vegetables while still hot. Let them cool as rapidly as possible. Then cover. Bacon and hams may be kept in any cool place where there is plenty of cold air in circulation about them to prevent mildew. They are best hung, protected by bags of cloth or paper.

Fruits should be kept in a cool, dark place and separated as much as possible. Berries should be poured on large plates or platters and spread out. If the watermelon is too large for the ice chest cover with a wet piece of socking and place where the wind will blow over it. The evaporation will make it delightfully cold. Lemons are best kept by wrapping in tissue paper and hanging in an openwork bag in a cool place. A bag made of netted white string is admirable for this purpose and can be washed when necessary.

Homemade Towels.

A fad has developed among fastidious women for making their own towels. They buy for the purpose fine French birdseye and French buck for their own personal use and German buck for general family use. Of course the fancy towels, which are lace trimmed and embroidered, are not homely practical.

But those hemstitched are, and either the family initial or some quaint emblem in cross stitch, white or colors, makes a charming finish.

Easily Convinced.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Sept. 24.—Alexander has been the mightiest defensive factor in the great pennant fight of the Phillies—but one mustn't overlook the fact that there are several other Philie pitchers who have aided in the uplift movement.

Demaree has won 12 of these Philie combats, Mayer has won 12; McQuillan, the cast-off, has won 11; Rixey has added 10 more and Chalmers has won 6.

Alex May Lead Pitchers.

As the pitchers in the National League go into the stretch, it begins to look as if Alexander will finish the season where he ought to finish—at the top.

The wonderful moundman has won something like 28 games against 10 defeats. That places him second to M. M. M. the Pirate phenom, but Alexander has been closing up the gap that divided the two, and now is only a few points behind. Alexander, during the past month has been breezing along in much better form while Mammoth shows signs of slipping.

"Smoker Joe" Wood, having come back into his own, is leading the American League hurlers by a rather healthy margin and ought to finish ahead of the field, although his teammates, Ruth and Foster, are giving him a close fight. Wood is about 40 points ahead of Ruth and about 50 ahead of Foster.

Great Fight in Federal.

McConnell, of the Chicago Whales, Allen of the Pittsburgh Rebels and Plank of the St. Louis outfit, are warring pretty three-cornered battle for the pitching honors in the Gilmore circuit. McConnell has the edge just now, having won 23 out of 32 games for a pitching average of 719. Allen is second with 21 victories in 32 games, an average of 656, and Plank is third with 17 won and 9 lost, for an average of 651. Nick Cullip, the left hander, with the Kansas City club, also can be considered in the fight, as he is only a few points in the rear, having won 18 out of 28 games, for an average of 649.

Hinchman May Lead Pirates.

Who will manage the Pirates next year?

Some there are who think that Hous Wagner will grab the job left vacant by the retirement of Fred Clarke, but from the "inside" comes the tip that Bill Hinchman, the big outfielder, may land the job.

Wagner in the opinion of many, would be too easy with the men. Hinchman, on the other hand, showed well in executive ability while with the Cleveland club a number of years ago when he handled the club in the absence of the regular leader.

Marquard Seems to be Through.

"Rube" Marquard seems to have outlived his major league usefulness. It was figured when he was let out by the Giants and again was taken under the wing of Wilbert Robinson that he might do a "come back" but the eccentric southpaw, in his last few starts has shown nothing that would merit keeping him on the payroll. He has been battered from the box with frequency.

However, Marquard's contract, one of those supposedly non-clad affairs, holds good until the end of the 1916 season, so that even if he is chased off into the bushes he will draw big league pay until October of next year.

Follette in Charge.

Following the subway accident in New York on Wednesday an investigation was begun by Coroner Feinberg to learn the real cause of the accident. Some testimony was taken and the coroner and Assistant District Attorney J. Ward Follette asked that two men be detained. They are a flagman and a blazer. Mr. Follette is a former resident of Kingston.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 24.—Joe Mandot of New Orleans gained a shade over Johnny Dundee in a spirited ten round battle at Ebbets Field last night. Dundee's flashy style had the southerner bewildered for the first few rounds, but after that the battle was all Mandot's.

Tokio, Sept. 24.—The baseball team of the University of Chicago defeated the Waseda University team this afternoon by a score of 5 to 3 in the opening game of the series. Thirty thousand persons watched the game within the grounds, while as many more were on the surrounding housetops and other places of vantage. The feature of the game was the magnificent work of Pitcher Desjardins of Chicago.

New York, Sept. 24.—Seats for the world's series may be reserved in Philadelphia and Boston now. It is about all over but the shouting and a great deal of that already has been done.

Bill Carrigan's Boston Red Sox have obtained a strangle hold on the American League lead, while Phil Moran's Phillies have about caught first place in the National loop. The Red Sox had a four and a half game lead, and have twelve games yet to play. The Tigers, their nearest rivals, have only nine games left. The Browns open a series at Boston today and Carrigan's men expect to make a sweep of the games.

The Phillies double barreled win yesterday afternoon over the Cubs gives them a six and one-half game hold on the lead. They also have a dozen games yet to play. Alexander's win in the first game made his thirteenth victory of the season. The Phillies are slated for another double bill in Chicago today.

Washington, Sept. 24.—Tyrrus Raymond Cobb came to Washington with the Tigers today, determined to steal at least four or five bases during the series. He registered his nineteenth stolen sack of the season at Philadelphia—an American League record, and he is out to make it a hundred. The Tigers have but nine more games to play this year. The world's record for stolen bases is 115, set in 1891 by William Hamilton of Philadelphia.

LOUGHREY BACK FROM AUSTRALIA LOOKING FOR CHANCE AT MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE.

Frank Loughrey.

Frank Loughrey, who started for Australia as a lightweight and came back a middleweight, is now looking for a match with Al McCoy, so-called champion while in Australia. Loughrey met Les Darcy in the ring and remained with the renowned Les for twenty rounds, which is longer than our own Eddie McGoorty lasted.

"Darcy is a great fighter," said Loughrey. "He reminds me a lot of Stanley Ketchell in his shift. He brings in one of the most powerful lefts to the ribs I ever saw. When he makes it. Believe me, there is some force to that punch. He has broken the ribs of many a fighter with it."

Diamonds Do Not Slump

See the war stocks jump? You may be one of the fortunate ones who bought right, but play safe and invest some of your profits in DIAMONDS. Diamonds are always a safe investment—stocks are not. A diamond indicates prosperity, lasts forever and always pays a satisfactory dividend.
